31 Persons Are Aboard Lost Craft

TOKYO (AP) — The North Koreans, who captured the intelligence ship Pueblo, reported their air force shot down a large U.S. reconnaissance plane today. The U.S. Defense Department said a Navy reconnaissance plane with 31 aboard was missing in the Sea of Japan.

Japanese fishing boats joined U.S. planes in a search for survivors. The U.S. Embassy in Moscow asked the Foreign Ministry for the assistance of any Soviet ships in the area.

In Washington, the Defense Department said the Navy EC121 plane was flying "a routime reconnaissance track" which kept it at least 50 nautical miles from the North Korean coastline.

The Pentagon did not immediately confirm that the North Koreans shot down the huge electronics-packed aircraft but said only that a broad search was launched for the plane and its crew of 31 in the Sea of Japan.

At the Capitol, however, Vice Adm. J. B. Colwell, deputy chief of naval operations, talked as though hostile action were involved.

He called the incident "a clear case of international piracy and a breach of international law." He talked briefly with newsmen before going into a closed session of the House Armed Services Committee. He

1 of 4 Verdicts Possible Sirhan's Fate Up to Jury

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The fate of Sirhan Bishara Sirhan rests with a jury that must weigh this question: how ill was he, mentally, when he killed Robert F. Kennedy?

The bantamweight, 25-year-old Jordanian Arab who put a gun to the head of the New York senator last June 5 watched stolidly as the jury of seven men and five women filed from the courtroom Monday to decide his fate.

Instructed by Judge Herbert V. Walker to be "uninfluenced by pity for the defendant or by passion or by prejudice against him," the jury can return any of four possible verdicts:

—First degree murder — asked by the state—with the penalty of life in prison or death. The penalty would be determined by the jury in a separate session.

—Second degree murder — asked by the defense — with the term of five years to life in prison.

—Manslaughter, one to 10 years.

—Acquittal.

The defense contended that Sirhan's mind was so blurred that the crime didn't meet the legal definition of first degree murder. But it did not ask for the other possible verdicts of manslaughter or outright acquittal.

Prosecutor Lynn D. Compton said, "That is not the issue. It is simply, was his premeditation of the sufficient quality that you, the jurors, feel that he should be held responsible."

The judge said the jury would sit daily until 4 p.m. The deliberations begin about 8-30 each morning.

Two Policemen Slain in Chicago

Ex-Marine Armed 'With Arsenal' Finally Gives Up

CHICAGO (AP) — Two policemen were slain in a shootout with a former Marine suspected of planting a number of bombs in public places, one of which killed a woman a week ago in a department store.

Firing rifles and pistols and hurling homemade bombs, Frank Kulak, 42-year-old veteran of fighting in World War II and Korea, barricaded himself Monday in his third-floor flat on the city's South Side to hold off police seeking to question him.

The bullet-riddled bodies of the policemen were found on a third-floor porch after Kulak surrendered.

Two other policemen and a civilian were wounded in the prolonged exchange of shots and several others were injured by falling debris from the explosion.

Kulak told police that he wanted to show people the horror of war.

Before he was taken away in a patrol car, Kulak was asked why he did it.

"Well, they came at me," he said. "The police, that's who. They came after me."

The siege began when three policemen went to Kulak's door about 3 p.m. to question him about several recent South Side bombings, including an explosion April 7 at a store in which a

Double Tragedy Brought to Town By 'Drag' Race

REXBURG, Idaho (AP) — Betsy Anderson, 16, a quiet, well-liked sophomore at Madison High School, was in the back seat of a car driven by her father. Lights came up fast from the rear. Suddenly, impact.

Betsy was killed. Residents of a nearby farmhouse rushed to the door upon hearing the crash. Through darkness they saw two twisted autos. And they said they saw another—it was white—roar up and stop.

The white car's driver, Drake Smith, 18, and passenger Bruce Ard ran to the accident. Smith shouted to the farmhouse: "Call an ambulance. And the sheriff. Hurry."

Betsy's family had been on the way to their rural home after spending Saturday evening at Idaho Falls. She had taken in a movie while her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Z. Anderson, square danced.

Gives First Aid Now, at midnight, young Smith—a friend and senior at Madison High—administered first aid to the survivors, as did Ard, while fighting realization that Betsy was dead.

Betsy's parents and three occupants of the collision's other car, driver Teddy Bischoff, 21, Kent Zollinger, 19, and Kenneth Firth 18, were taken to the Rexburg hospital. None was critically hurt.

As the ambulances pulled away, Deputy Sheriff Blair Seipert briefly questioned Smith and Ard. He knew both. Most everyone knows everyone in the Rexburg area. The town has a population of about 7,000.

Seipert says two told him that they had been about 200 yards behind the Bischoff car and had not seen brake lights before it crashed into the Anderson car.

"Then he said 'I ought to kill myself,'" says Jensen. "We discussed it. I asked him if he wanted to go to the sheriff's office. Drake said no, that he wanted to go home and get his father to come in with him."

"I thought it was just an expression, that he didn't mean it. I told him it wasn't that bad—that it was serious, but not that bad."

Later, a neighbor was talking with Drake's parents in the kitchen. The youth went into his bedroom.

"Drake, do you want a piece of cake?" called his mother.

"No, thanks."

About 4:20 p.m., Seipert was still at his desk, waiting for Drake Smith. Came an urgent radio call from the Highway Patrol: "A shooting at the Irving Smith home. Bring an ambulance."

Drake's body lay on the floor of a blood-splattered closet, a massive wound in his neck. Nearby was his 16-gauge shotgun.

Armstrong to be First on Moon?

SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — A civilian spaceman may make his mark in history by taking a walk.

The stroll would be on the surface of the moon, and space officials said Monday that Neil Armstrong, commander of Apollo 11, is scheduled to be the first man to make it.

Apollo 11 is planned for launch from Cape Kennedy July 16. The landing is expected on July 20.

George Low, director of the Apollo spacecraft program office, said Monday it was intended that Armstrong, 38, would be the first man to set foot on the Earth's satellite after he and Air Force Col. Edwin E. Aldrin, 39, land the Apollo 11 lunar module there.

If all goes according to plan, Armstrong will explore for two hours and 40 minutes, and will be joined by Aldrin several minutes after he takes the first step.

Low said the space duo would

land on the moon and immediately throw the switches that would leave the module ready for an immediate launch should an emergency develop.

Then Armstrong and Aldrin will rest for four hours aboard the little craft. Low said he didn't expect either to get much sleep.

Armstrong will start the moon surface stroll by opening the lunar module hatch and descending a ladder.

One of his first acts, Low said, would be to gather a sample of moon rock, the first of 50 pounds Armstrong and Aldrin will pick up.

With the rocks safely in hand, Armstrong will test the ability of man to perform on the airless moon surface wearing a bulky space suit and handicapped by the satellite's lesser gravity.

Near the end of the two-hour-and-40 minute period on the surface, the pair will hurry back to the safety of the lunar module.

Low said the two would be on the lunar surface a total of 22 hours, but would spend only a fraction of that time outside the module.

During their moon walk, he said, they will get no farther than 50 to 100 feet from their craft.

'Not a Lobbyist' Knowles Defends 'Failure' To Wage War Over Budget

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau MADISON — It is up to department heads and pressure groups to fight for budgets being slashed by the legislative Joint Committee on Finance, Gov. Warren P. Knowles said Monday.

"I'm not a lobbyist and I don't have a magic wand and I can't very well coerce or intimidate members of the legislative body into accepting my views," said Knowles of the finance committee which already has cut about $200 million from his proposed $1.6 billion budget for 1969-71.

"People just don't seem to understand the limitations of powers imposed by the state Constitution," said Knowles of criticism that he is not fighting for his own budget.

That budget is now undergoing the scalpel of the finance committee, which has cut deeply into funds proposed in most major state agencies for any new programs and for costs caused by increased workload in the two-year, on-going budget of the state.

"The President of the United States doesn't go up onto Capitol Hill and defend his budget, and I know of no governor in the country... who is charged with lobbying for his budget," said Knowles.

"The governor cannot continue to interfere and intercede in legislative deliberations," Knowles made his comments after a 90-minute operational cabinet meeting, in which seven major department heads were present. Four of them have undergone sizable cuts in their recommended budgets. No one at the meeting brought up the subject during the session at which reporters were present.

Asked why the silence was prevalent, and about criticisms over his alleged non-action, Knowles made his statement.

"Unique Session" "This is a most unique session of the legislature," said Knowles, contending that the lawmakers, distracted by disruptions on the University of Wisconsin campus, have yet to really come to grips with the essential duties of the legislature to find revenues and to attempt to establish the level of funding authority, which he Knowles was referring to the black student strike which took place early in the 1969 session.

Knowles said the agency heads and interested citizens available to the Emergency Food and Medical Services program and funding proposals contained in the executive budget recommendations, mobilizing a coordinated attack

"I'm finding no communication hunger," Nelson said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation to extend the war on poverty for three more years and to start a new $1 billion war on hunger was proposed today by Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis.

Hearings on his bill, Nelson said will start April 23 before the Senate subcommittee on Employment, Manpower and Poverty, of which Nelson is chairman.

The three-year extension, he said, is the shortest period of time to give poverty agencies "forward funding" authority, which he said is needed if the program is to be properly planned and administered.

By making a billion dollars available to the Emergency Food and Medical Services program under the existing law, we give the administration a tremendous degree of flexibility in budget recommendations, mobilizing a coordinated attack

Canada's Eskimo Women Have Less Breast Cancer

Japan's mortality from breast cancer almost doubled between 1910 and 1950, he said.

Schaefer didn't rule out heredity as a cause of breast cancer, but added: "The common contributing factor appears to be either the decrease in the duration of breast feeding or its complete elimination—a result of assimilation by Western culture, turned up only one case of

Chancel Players to be Featured At Church Dessert Program

"It's a Master of Life," a play that utilizes poems, prayer, play cuttings and a parable dealing with the beginning, loss, end and meaning of life, will be presented at 7 p.m. tonight by Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Smith of the Chancel Players, Green Bay, at a dessert program to be sponsored by the Women's Fellowship of the First Congregational Church.

The Chancel Players are a religious drama repertory group organized in 1963 under the auspices of the Union Congregational Church of Green Bay. The need and desire for this type of dramatic organization began in the belief that drama in the church can be an effective medium for communicating basic religious, social and ethical themes.

Money Can Become Weapon For Married Middle-Agers

BY FRIEDA KAYE

An author who specializes in family problems took a new look at the old Broadway song, "Money Isn't Everything as Long as You've Got Dough," and declared it isn't always true in marriage — especially during the middle years.

In an exclusive interview, people's attitudes toward money conducted in New York by Frieda Kay, Norman M. Lobsenz, co-author of the recently published book, "How to Stay Married," said that some middle-aged couples may be well off financially but use money as a psychological weapon to hurt each other.

"Arguments about money are often, like sex, an area where basic conflicts can be placed," Mr. Lobsenz said. "Money particularly, because it is a kind of safe, less to date and all essential de-threatening area to discuss. It is socially acceptable that people will argue about their basic psychological views of life. So money becomes an area in which you can either get rid of or encourage all the anxieties and conflicts that are within you."

"These problems become more noticeable in the middle years," the author pointed out, because in the early stages of a marriage couples are "getting used to each other, their spending habits, and so on." Their financial aims are alike: to set up a budget, pay the mortgage, and save for children's college education. Then, in the middle years, the essential money demands diminish, and the problem shifts to the question of what money represents. At this point, basic attitudes and conflicts of each partner may come into play, the author said.

Money Attitudes the Same

According to Mr. Lobsenz, people's attitudes toward money are usually inherited from their parents. A man or woman who grew up in a household which was concerned with finances, said that some middle-aged couples may be well off financially but use money as a psychological weapon to hurt each other.

As an example, he told of the couple who had been married more than 20 years. Their mortgage was paid, their children had finished college, insurance bills were up, and the husband wanted to take a trip around the world. Friction developed because the wife still felt compulsive about saving.

"It is difficult," Mr. Lobsenz concluded, "for some people to rethink their finances in relation to their mature years. Irritation or arguments that arise about money conceal inability to accept maturity."

Male-Female Aging Differences

Money quarrels may mask slackening sexual interest between a husband and wife in later years of a marriage, Mr. Lobsenz explained. But one of the most important things for a woman to remember, he warned, is that this does not imply a lessening of love.

A woman in her late forties faces her menopausal years, the author said, but there is no need for her to be "afflicted with doubts about her sexual potency." Psychologically, with more financial security, less household chores and child care responsibility and freedom from the pregnancy phobia, she should have greater sexual enjoyment. Physically, medical science has supplied many aids for relief from menopausal symptoms, such as replacing the estrogen no longer manufactured by the female ovaries.

A man of the same age, however, may also be afflicted with doubts about his sexual potency when he approaches these mature years and his seeming loss of interest in sex — and the possible resultant money squabbles — are defensive maneuvers, he indicated.

Mr. Lobsenz thinks that, ideally, a couple should be able to communicate about their problems openly and freely. If they can't, he advises that they seek the help of a marriage counselor who can give them guidelines for handling problems in their mature years. Often they will find that these problems are not about dollars and cents but about their basic attitudes toward money and its use as a cover-up for deeper emotional differences between the couple.

Tom Sawyer Is Alive and Well

Yes, Tom Sawyer is alive and well, which means Mark Twain's impish, but lovable boy wonder is up to his usual mischievous tricks once again.

This time the setting will be Lincoln School, where intermediate 3 students under the direction of Mrs. Rita Aerts, have spent hours constructing and painting sets, assembling costumes and memorizing lines for what will be their very own production of the classic tale of boyhood.

Curtain time will be 2:30 p.m. Wednesday when parents will have the opportunity to see the imaginative results of their children's efforts.

Huck Finn, played by Michael Schoenbohm, listens gleefully as Joe Harper alias Jay Larson lets him in on the neighborhood boys' latest scheme.

Ann Has Her Say on Campus Disorders

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a middle-aged square who would like your opinion on the current campus upheavals. What's behind this so-called alienation of youth? Have we botched things so badly that everything ought to be junked — including our university system?

I'm horrified by what I read in the newspapers and see on TV. Is there any justification for these campus revolutions? Do college students have the right to virtually close down our institutions of higher learning?

I've always been a champion of youth, but my faith has been shaken. Please, Ann Landers, express yourself. You've been noticeably silent on a subject of enormous social significance. — Bewildered

Dear Bewildered: Welcome to the club. I, too, have always had great faith in our youth. And I still have. They are brighter than we were, more assertive, more articulate, and they possess a far deeper commitment to social justice.

The vast majority of campus kids are decent, law-abiding citizens who want an education. And this is what makes the campus rioting reprehensible. The hell-raisers — those who have been destroying property and obstructing justice — are clearly in the minority on every campus where there has been trouble.

In a free society, citizens

Landers have the right to dissent, to express opposition to practices which they consider unjust. But wanton destruction of property, rifling of files, threatening college presidents and faculty members is not valid protest. It is lawlessness and must not be tolerated.

I believe students who break the law should be treated as lawbreakers. There must be no shilly-shallying, no dilly-dallying, no deals, no amnesty granted. When we bow to the demands of the nihilists and reward criminal tactics, we encourage others to follow their lead. When we knuckle under to rioters who spit in the face of authority we are being unfair to students who want to learn, to taxpayers and alumni who support these schools, and to the embattled faculty members and administrators who wind up at the mercy of roughnecks.

Unless we take a firm stand against these anarchists, many of whom are not even students but professional troublemakers, we will see an end to the university and the birth of fascism.

Supervisors Taking Apart 'Power Structure' of Board

Separate Executive, Finance Functions

A resolution to establish an Outagamie County Board finance committee and to elect its five members from the floor was approved this morning at the opening session of the board's annual April reorganization meeting.

The vote was 37-10. The measure was part of a reorganization resolution introduced by 10 supervisors to establish a full-time standing finance committee and, as one supporter put it, "dismantle the power structure."

Budget Responsibility

The measure would take much budget responsibility from the executive committee, which in the past, had elected from its membership a five-man finance subcommittee.

In a sharp debate filled with motions, amended motions and confusion expressed by several supervisors, the county board also agreed to establish the finance committee as a tenth standing committee, instead of merging two to keep the number of nine the original resolution had urged. The original resolution had suggested merging agriculture and institutions committees to free some supervisors to serve on the new finance committee.

The county board went into a committee of the whole session for a lengthy discussion. One supporter, Supt. Eugene Kloes, Appleton, said the county has an $8 million budget which cannot be sustained by a subcommittee that barely meets once a year.

"Few People" He charged, "The power of the board is boxed up with a few people."

Under the present setup, the county executive secretary works with the committee chairmen and department heads to prepare budget requests, which are then presented to the finance subcommittee. The subcommittee's recommendations are sent to the executive committee for action.

Kloes contended there is inadequate time spent by the subcommittee on critical budget matters.

The resolution drew a sharp attack from Supv. Marvin Babbitt, Seymour, who charged "you fellas have not brought out the underlying reason for bringing out this resolution".

He said the resolution was aimed at eliminating the executive committee.

"You aren't fair and honest in stating your reason," he added. Another resolution supporter, Supv. Charles Wussow, Appleton, refuted Babbitt's remarks. He noted the executive committee meets only a half a day per month at the call of the board chairman, whom, he noted, doesn't call meetings more often.

Wussow and Kloes pointed to what they called financial confusion on airport projects as an example of the need for an active standing finance committee.

Wussow said the "lack of Members of city councils, other officials and the general public from Appleton, Neenah, Menasha and Kaukauna have been invited to attend the Fox Valley premiere showing of the film, "Crisis in the Cities" at the Appleton City Hall at 6:30 p.m. today.

Mayor George Buckley said the color film, prepared for statewide distribution by the Alliance of Cities, visually points up the problems of cities across the state. Fox Valley communities and problem areas are featured.

Expansion Project Okayed at Xavier

Cost of Alterations in Four-Step First Stage Estimated at $33,000

A four-step expansion program costing about $33,000 has been approved by Xavier High School by the school board. This is the first stage of a possible nine-step program.

The first four steps, for which money has been set aside, will involve the expansion of a library, formation of a religion resource center, consolidation of the art department and moving the faculty rooms.

According to Brother Paul Ostendorf, principal, this will be done in the summer and will be ready for the fall school term.

Expand Chapel

In order to expand the library, the chapel and the faculty rooms behind the present library will be taken out. The faculty rooms will be moved across the courtyard nearer to the main office.

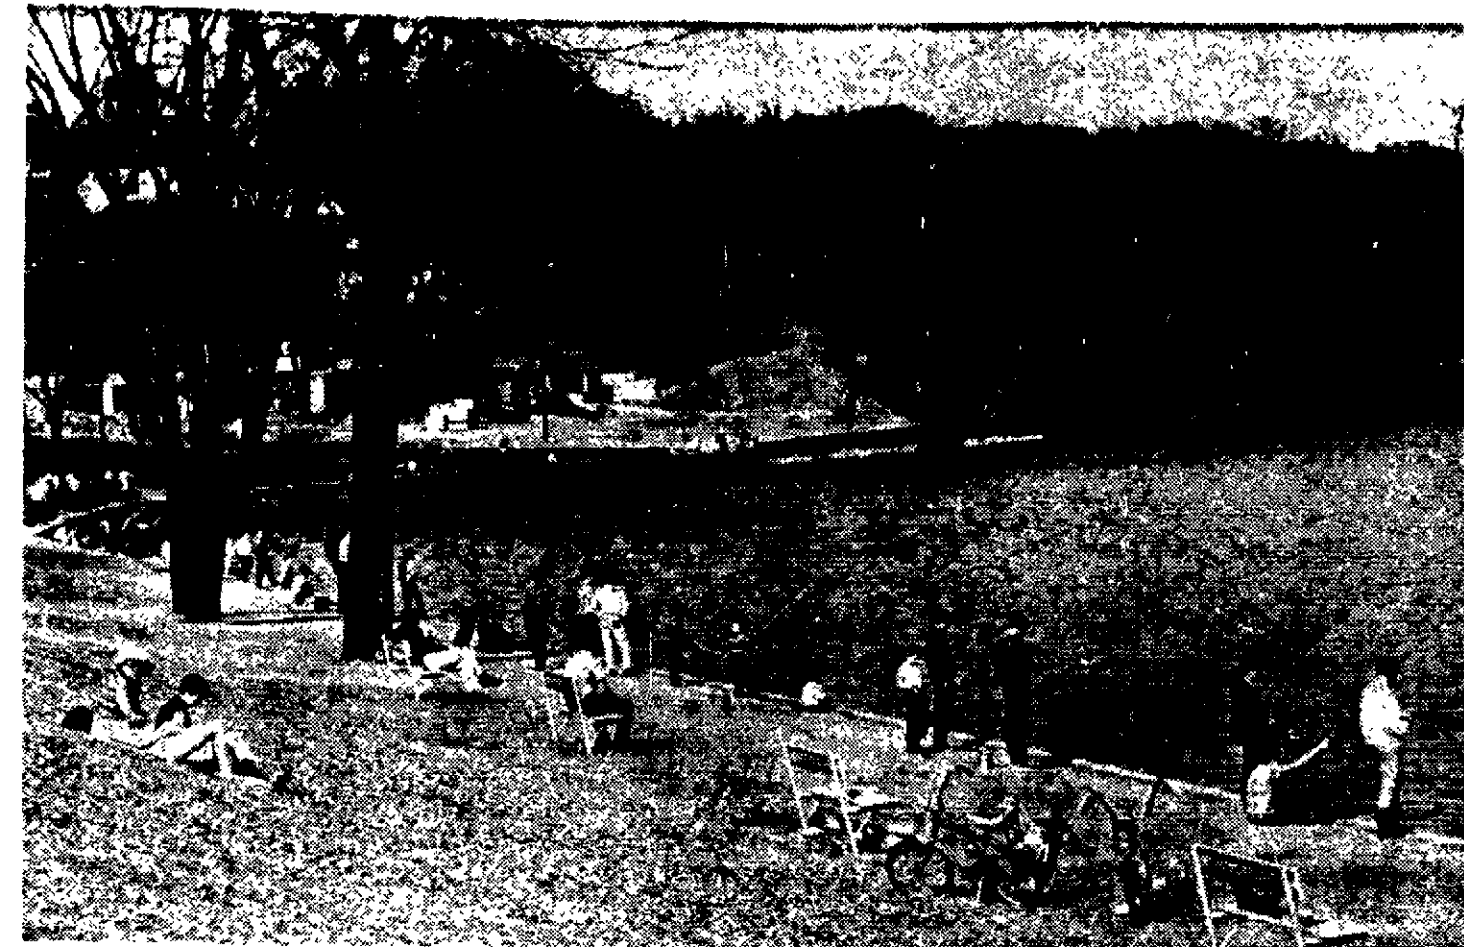

Five present rooms will be turned into six team-teaching rooms with movable walls for a religion center and the art department will be compressed into one area rather than have two separate areas.

Future plans call for a science center, which would cost from $60,000 to $80,000. The board approved a drive, to be headed by the science department, with the provision that construction on the center would

Xavier to Initiate Open Door Policy

Beginning this fall, Xavier High School will initiate an open door policy. Anyone who wishes to attend the school may enroll, even if he does not live in Appleton, the Xavier Board of Education ruled recently.

Although there has been no diocesan policy on this before, according to the Rev. Richard Kleiber, superintendent, the overcrowding in some cases make it impossible for schools to accept students from outside the city.

Disagree on Aims Watershed Council Clash

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Signs of disagreement pervade the second meeting of the newly formed Fox-Wolf Watershed Council, a voluntary organization of three Fox Valley planning commissions to promote cooperation and pool planning knowledge.

The clash of ideas started with wording of the articles of the organization, spread to when and what kind of conferences it should hold and included disagreement over the exact purpose of the young joint body.

Proposed articles were presented by the Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG), which Eugene E. Franchett, COG executive director, said were minor revisions of the articles suggested by the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission.

Fox-Wolf Council

His changes, said Franchett, would incorporate more closely the idea of a Fox-Wolf Watershed Council. The group seemed to agree last month the Fox and Wolf should be the principal areas to work to improve. For this reason, he included "northeastern Wisconsin" and "Lake Michigan" from the language of the articles.

Gordon A. Bubolz, chairman of the regional planning commission, objected sharply, suggesting COG's changes would make the joint organization appear to not care about Lake Michigan.

COG representative Abbott Byfield, director of public affairs for Kimberly-Clark Corp., reminded Bubolz that this joint committee can do little about the problems in the lower Lake Michigan area.

Another COG representative, Robert Driessen, an engineer at Thilmany Pulp and Paper Co., Kaukauna, suggested the joint committee should first seek to take care of its own area.

Franchett said the "intent was not to strike Lake Michigan as a concern; if we do a good job in our areas, it would necessarily follow that this would contribute to improving Lake Michigan."

Both sets of proposed articles were tabled for further study.

'Key to Moving Ahead'

State Official Praises Joint Planning Group

A state official called the Fox-Wolf Watershed Council an advanced stage in regional planning and threw "his division's support to the newly-formed organization."

Thomas Frangos, director of the State Department of Natural Resources' division of environmental protection, said that forming this group of three planning commissions for cooperative effort "is really the key to moving ahead."

Frangos' comments came at the second meeting of the group of representatives from the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission, the Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG) and the Brown County Planning Commission.

Bubolz and Eugene Garrow, Fremont, a former regional planning commissioner, pushed for a conference in late May. Garrow said that technicians from various state divisions should be brought in to discuss what they have done to date in water resource management.

Franchett said the subcommittee appointed at the first meeting had agreed to delay a conference until September because notice was too short to prepare an adequate conference and secure good speakers. The joint council was formed in March.

He hinted there also would be state financial help.

He added: "In the next two years, we should be providing you with some tangible support in any efforts you may undertake."

Leonard Crook, executive director of the Great Lakes Regional Commission, and Cy Kabat, of the resource department's research bureau, also offered full cooperation and support. Crook said his organization wanted to tie in this area's work with that of the other Great Lakes areas.

Since the state and federal governments first took significant steps in the mid-1970s, Frangos said, here have been moves to more effectively regional planning and comprehensive water resource planning.

The state realized the federal government needed help in water programs and passed a law in 1966 to develop comprehensive water resources planning and regional plans, he said.

The next steps in Madison, he continued, will be gathering basic data and analyzing it, conducting studies to determine the necessary policies and structures of programs, and developing river basin plans.

Local Participation

He noted that coordination between state, local and federal units is important. "We recog-

Byfield questioned the hurry and noted certain state studies would be completed this summer, making a fall conference an ideal time.

Garrow would not relent, and a compromise was reached. The technicians will be called in for the council meeting May 28, and the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay will be contacted on a more extensive conference, geared toward public awareness, later in the year.

The COG representatives suggested it should direct its efforts toward working with private, municipal and industrial groups in this area on the water resource problems while Garrow said the regional planning commission's original intent was to communicate more with state and federal officials and coordinate knowledge and programs.

The third member of the joint council is the Brown County Planning Commission, which was represented by Ralph Bergman, county planner.

$75,000 Bond Set for Crotteau

Arraignment Pending In Armed Robbery Of Greenville Bank

RAPID CITY, S.D.—Bond was set at $75,000 Monday for a 62-year-old Appleton man charged with the April 8 armed robbery of the Greenville branch of the First National Bank of Appleton.

Edward P. Crotteau, 408 W. Seventh St., is being held in the Pennington County jail in lieu of posting the bond set by a federal court commissioner here.

Crotteau's formal arraignment on the charge is not expected until the federal warrant is received from Milwaukee, probably in about two days.

Crotteau at his formal arraignment is expected to indicate if he is willing to voluntarily return to Wisconsin to face the robbery charge in Federal Court at Milwaukee or have further proceedings here.

Crotteau, formerly of 617 Wilson St., Neenah, was taken into custody Sunday morning at a Rapid City motel by FBI agents who said they recovered a revolver and $15,000. He is suspected of taking about $15,500 in the holdup.

Man Charged With Obscene Picture Sales

The owner of an Appleton book store has been ordered to appear in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 today on a charge of having obscene or indecent pictures for sale.

The criminal complaint, issued Monday afternoon by Dist. Atty. James R. Long, names Eugene Court, operator of the Book Seller, 609 W. College Ave.

The complaint was signed by an Appleton businessman, Robert Schreiter, who alleges he purchased three $2 picture magazines at the book store on March 21. The complaint alleges that the magazines contained several obscene pictures.

Long said this morning that his office probably will bring a similar felony charge against a second Appleton book store soon.

The charge brought against Court carries a maximum sentence of five years in prison or not more than a $5,000 fine, or both.

City Can Burn Mortgage on East Parking Ramp Today

The match was to be put to the "mortgage" on Appleton's East Ramp today.

Treasurer Ray Feuerstein said he made the last payment on the six-year-old municipal parking structure.

"It's now debt-free and fully owned by the City of Appleton," Feuerstein commented. The ramp cost $500,000 to construct, excluding land. The money was borrowed from three Appleton banks.

Since the ramp was up into operation, all revenues have been earmarked for paying off the bank notes.

Feuerstein called attention to the fact the city was able to get a loan at a 2.8 per cent interest rate in 1963.

Since 1960, the city has paid off the debts on both the East and West Ramps.

Business, Planning Meeting

Nationwide Lutheran Pioneers Convention to be at Valley School

Registration will be at 7 a.m. and the opening church service, conducted by the Rev. Sylvester Johnson, pastor, St. Matthew Church, at 8:30 a.m.

At 9:15 a.m. Carl C. Meitner, Appleton, national chairman, will open the meeting.

Officer Election During the session, an election to fill the expired terms of five of the 10 officers on the National Council, will be held. Meitner, who has served on the council for the past four years, the last two as chairman, will be up for re-election.

Members and ex-officio members of the national council are

Bruce Thompson, Burlington; the Rev. Larry Zessin, Winona, Minn.; the Rev. David Ponath, Antioch, Ill.; Myron Stark, Zion, Ill.; Leon Herter, Ann Arbor, Mich.;

Harold Koch, Burlington; Rudy Suter, Altura, Minn.; Harold Schanzbach, Minnetonka; Herbert Simon, Tecumseh, Mich.; Alfred Bublitz, Hartford; Verner Samuelson, St. Paul; Don Opitz, Wauwatosa; and Duane Anderson, Chicago.

Seminars Planned

Besides the regular meeting seminars on the Pioneer program also will be discussed. Included are patriotism, older boy programs, fallacies of evolution, and planning and record keeping.

Ex-officio officers to be appointed include the national commander, chaplain, public relations director and treasurer.

Each of the congregations in the national organization is entitled to send two voting delegates.

Groups of Pioneers are established in 11 states. Paperland District, which encompasses the Fox Valley, is centrally located.

Biennial Convention

The Lutheran Pioneers hold a national convention biennially on the odd numbered years. During the even numbered years a leader's training clinic is held in Burlington.

Included in the Paperland District are Riverview, St. Matthew, St. Paul, Bethany and Mt. Olive, all of Appleton; Mt. Calvary, Kimberly; Grace, Oshkosh; First Lutheran, Green Bay; St. Paul, Algoma; St. Paul, Dale; Zion, Peshtigo; St. Paul, Oconto Falls-Lena; Immanuel, Greenville-Clayton; and St. Peter-St. John, Cleveland.

Each of these will set up a display of their handicraft work.

The purpose of the Pioneer program is to teach young boys Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran theology, appreciation of the outdoors, develop leadership, build citizenship, teach safety and provide spare time activities.

LU Group Studies Recruiting Policy

All recruiting practices and policies at Lawrence University involving the military services, industry and educational institutions are under examination.

General policies which govern the activities of the placement bureau at the school are being studied by a committee of the Lawrence University Community Council (LUCC).

The committee, headed by Marwin Wroldstad, business manager at Lawrence, was created shortly after a student petition was presented to LUCC asking the university to ban all recruiting practices on the Appleton campus by the military.

The LUCC committee, an outgrowth of this petition, decided not only to examine military recruitment, but also all recruiting aspects carried on at the university.

Activities Suspended
Also, since the petition was presented, the Army and Air Force recruiting offices here voluntarily suspended their activities on the campus.

On April 23, the Navy and Marine recruiters were scheduled to appear on the campus, but they also have been requested by the administration to suspend their activities.

Asked why industry and educational institutions were included in the study, Thomas Trettin, director of university public relations, said, "This is the intellectual and academic approach to the problem."

"Lawrence felt it was time to look at its total recruitment program," he added.

Trettin pointed out no formal petition was presented by the students opposing recruitment by industry or educational institutions. However, he mentioned "complaints of their activities on the campus have been registered by students."

Complete Survey
Wroldstad said that "after an exhaustive survey, the committee plans to make its recommendations to LUCC regarding practices and policies currently in force. It is our intention to study the matter with objectivity to arrive at a reasonable policy which does not interfere with individual rights."

The basic function of the placement bureau, headed by Miss Marie Dohr, director, involves setting up appointments for student interviews, Trettin explained.

"When a company or educational institution calls here, Miss Dohr or someone on her staff arranges a calendar date for the interviewer with senior students. A bulletin is then posted and students interested in interviewing contacts the placement bureau. Thereafter, it's up to the student to make the initial contact," the public relations director said.

Trettin also emphasized that the petition calling for the ban of military recruitment on the campus represents the "vast minority" of students enrolled at the university.

Committee Members
In addition to Wroldstad, the committee is composed of students Ellen Priest and James Noble; Miss Dohr; Mrs. Lewis Bateman, associate professor of physical education; and Kenneth Sager, associate professor of education.

The committee held its first meeting on April 11 and discussed operational and investigative procedures. "No conclusions were made," Trettin noted.

The LUCC committee is planning weekly Friday meetings until the matter of campus recruiting is resolved.

ize local and regional participation is necessary if there is to be acceptance," he said.

"We encourage you to continue in this effort to develop a water resources plan as a basis for accomplishing goals," he told the joint group.

He urged the three member commissions to avoid duplication and make it a cooperative and comprehensive effort. County and community officials often have criticized the two Appleton-based planning groups for overlap.

It was suggested this joint council could help avoid this overlap.

Frangos said the joint council will need money and "strong direction from full-time people on it" to make it go. He noted if the member commissions would not allow their people a freedom to work on the joint council effort, it would be hampered.

Need Good Workers
"It's easy to talk about coordination, but it just doesn't happen unless you've got some good, strong people working on it," he said.

On a question, Frangos indicated the natural resources department could make the adjustment if the governor called for uniform administrative districts for state services. However, he added that it would require some changes.

He did not foresee that the reorganizing of districts would make major immediate changes in location of state services facilities or hamper severely current operations. The state's departments reportedly support the new district lines.

He noted the five-man finance committee would then become the power structure.

Voting against establishing a finance committee were Supvs. Babbitt, Henry Breiling, DeBruin, Norman Helms, Theodore A. Jens, Merritt T. Kavanaugh, Clarence Miller, George H. Schroeder, Rudolph Spreeman and Bernard Tillman.

In other action the five-man county board highway committee was re-elected on a unanimous ballot. They are Ervin Conradt, Shiocton; Daniel Williams, Combined Locks; George Kroes, Vandenberg; Patrick Heenan, Appleton, and Irving Grunwaldt, Black Creek.

Originally started at Oshkosh and then transferred to the Outagamie County Courthouse, the trial is now scheduled to resume Wednesday at 9:30 a.m. in the circuit court chambers.

Respondents in the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) complaint, arising out of charges made by Oshkosh Ready Mix, are Teamsters Local 563, Operating Engineers Local 139, and Plumbers and Steamfitters Local 458.

A Kaukauna Landmark, the former Grandview Hotel on Second Street and Main Avenue is being razed to permit the area to be utilized by the Kaukauna Savings and Loan for parking purposes or future expansion. The structure, built in the early 1880s, was considered one of the finest hotels in the city. The boom of manufacturing and the railroad brought many people to Kaukauna in those years thus insuring success of the hotel business. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Requirements Not Met ROTC Loss Doesn't Surprise LU Colonel

Lt. Col. Cecil Voils inferred Monday afternoon that he knew Lawrence University was in danger of losing its Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) program "because of the facts."

The facts are that since 1966, when the Department of Defense set the standard requiring universities and colleges to generate a minimum of 15 officers per year, Lawrence graduated only 23 in the Reserve and only seven are expected to make the grade this year.

The records of Voils, director of the ROTC program and professor of aerospace studies, shows in 1966 only nine students received commissions as second lieutenants in the Reserve; eight in 1967 and six last year. Lawrence was among several schools in the country placed on probation in 1968 for failing to raise its annual officer output.

A further breakdown of Voils' records indicates that since 1959, the greatest number graduating was in 1961 when 13 were awarded commissions. In 1962 there were 12 graduates, the following year the figure dropped to six, and in 1964, 11 were awarded commissions.

Decline Since 1964
However, since 1964 there has been a drastic decline in the number of graduates. The university's Air Force ROTC program began in 1951 and it was compulsory for all male freshmen and sophomore students. In 1959, the Air Force compulsory requirement was dropped for all land grant universities and colleges.

However, no standard was established at the time for private institutions. The Lawrence administration then decided to drop the compulsory regulation and gave the students the option on whether they wanted to complete their four-year program.

Voils could not pinpoint the reason why interest dropped in the program. "In our case it was just insufficient interest on the part of the students," he said. "Certain standards were set by the Department of Defense and we were not meeting them," Voils added.

Minimums Set
Schools with a four-year program had to graduate a minimum of 15 officers per year and the minimum was 10 officers under the two-year program. Lawrence conducts both four and two year programs.

Voils said the first class to graduate a two-year man was in 1968 — remainder have been four-year men. "This year, three two-year men will graduate," he noted.

The first two years in the program are spent studying what the Air Force is required to do to meet national objectives; the third year encompasses study on Air Force history and space programs, and the final year on leadership and skills and their application to the Air Force.

In the four-year program, the prospective officers are required to attend field training exercises for four weeks, "usually between their junior and senior years," Voils said.

Those on the two-year program must take six weeks of field training prior to enrolling in the academic program. The majority of these exercises are taken between the sophomore and junior year.

Phased Out
The ROTC program will be phased out at Lawrence, and seven other schools in the country, within three years.

Voils said those presently enrolled in the program will be permitted to continue. But, as of the next school term, no one will be accepted in the ROTC.

A native of Lincoln, Neb., Voils has been at Lawrence since 1967. He had served in the Royal Canadian Air Force on an exchange program established after World War II by the United States, England, Australia and Canada.

Voils said the Air Force ROTC programs will be continued on 167 campuses in the country.

Appleton Adding, Not Losing Industry, Alderman Declares

Kalata Refutes Charge That City Losing to Town of Grand Chute

An Appleton alderman has taken exception to a recent remark by a colleague that Appleton is losing industry to the Town of Grand Chute.

Within the past 30 months, according to Ald. Walter Kalata (2nd), secretary of the city council's commerce-industrial development committee, upwards of $5 million worth of developments were added to the city's tax base.

Kalata also said the committee and other groups cooperated behind the scenes in encouraging the $7 million Gimbel's Department Store project which will get underway in downtown Appleton soon.

Industrial Park
"The best thing Appleton could have done was to establish another industrial park, create a land bank and actively seek expansion of local firms and location here of new companies," Kalata declared.

Kalata said he compiled a list of firms and building projects that did business with the commerce-industrial development committee which had been headed by Ald. Ralph Gertsch (19th), defeated in the recent aldermanic election.

He did so after taking issue with a recent remark by Ald. Glenn W. Thompson (13th) during a meeting of the council's public safety committee that Appleton had lost industry to "The Strip," a reference to the commercial stretch on W. College Avenue in the Town of Grand Chute.

Loss of Gertsch
"The future absence of Gertsch from the committee will be a tremendous loss," Kalata declared. "He is a businessman with drive and foresight who knows what expanding industries and commerce require."

Local firms have been expanding in the city and not moving out, according to Kalata, who said several outside concerns have also come into Appleton as result of properties available in the Northeast and Southwest Industrial Parks — plus land the committee searched out for prospective clients.

"Bad Memory"
Kalata credited Gertsch with laying much of the groundwork for getting a working understanding with the Appleton Area Chamber of Commerce, Appleton Industrial Development Corporation, and other groups and individuals interested in adding to the local tax base.

In listing many concerns that dealt with the commerce-industrial development committee at some period while planning expansions, Kalata suggested Thompson "has a bad memory."

Among the firms doing business through the committee and acquiring sites in the new Northeast Industrial Park (old airport) were Ray Cordin, Inc., Appleton Mills, Oscar Boldt Construction Co., Fox Valley Liquor Co., August Winter & Son, Inc., Bartelt Asbestos and cork Co., Badger Sporting Arms.

Kalata said the city was also instrumental in getting Marcus Enterprises, Inc., Milwaukee, to construct a $500,000 bowling alley complex to the north of the industrial park.

Labor Temple
In addition, the city sold another tract of land on the northeast side to the Appleton Labor Temple which has plans for a major construction project, including offices.

At the Southwest Industrial Park, Kalata noted, properties were sold to the following for expansion purposes: F. W. Means Co.; Wisconsin Michigan Power Co.; Doherty Distributors Dougherty Distributing Co. and Van Eperen Paints.

Kalata said the committee also assisted in getting R. Sabee Co., Appleton, to plan a $300,000 manufacturing expansion program on the former city home property.

Room for Expansion
Kalata said one of the problems long plaguing downtown Appleton is that firms have no room for expanding because of the problem of putting together an adequate sized site.

In acquiring industrial park properties, the city has installed utilities and sold tracts to interested firms and developers at cost.

Annexed Land
Kalata cited there were also some developers who obtained property in Grand Chute and then had it annexed into Appleton for municipal services.

"I think this speaks well for the city's policy of helping and encouraging industry and business in general to locate here," Kalata said.

In addition to Gertsch and Kalata, others serving on the commerce-industrial development committee the past year have been Aids. Robert Roemer (8th) and Al Stoegebauer (4th).

another plug for strong support of all Tarr Task Force recommendations and resultant bills now pending before the legislature.

The fiscal control board — made up of the 20 council members and town chairmen from four communities — will meet at 7 p.m. to hear recommendations from Finance Director David Champion on planning for a $2.58 million bond issue for additions and remodeling at Roosevelt and Wilson junior high schools.

Because of the high interest bond market, Champion is expected to outline alternatives to immediate full financing of the projects.

Not Bonding
Financial consultants have been cautioning communities not to sell bond issues now. Champion feels the market may have reached a high when interest rates hit 5.3 per cent, but like the consultants, is not sure.

The final decision will be up to the members of the fiscal control board.

After the board meeting, the city council will convene for its organizational session — the election of a president at the top of the agenda.

Buckley also will announce committee and board appointments for the coming year, indicating that because of the large turnover of aldermen (five new members are being seated) he intends to recommend several changes.

Desire to Win Stressed by MU's McGuire

'You Need a Dream,' Coach Tells Athletes

By JOHN L. PAUSTIAN Post-Crescent Sports Editor

Al McGuire stressed winning and the need for dreams during his appearance at the All-Fox Cities athletic banquet Monday night in the Darby Club.

"The inner feeling you get out of winning is the most important thing in athletics," the Marquette University basketball coach told the group that had gathered for the third annual awards banquet sponsored by the Little Chute Jaycees. "The idea is to win — that's why you keep score."

"Take this desire to win and apply it to other fields as well," advised McGuire. He pointed out that athletes have the advantage of finding out about "peaks and valleys" while still in school. "There is no in-between," McGuire noted. "Your other friends in school won't feel this until they get into the outside world as adults."

McGuire also told the athletes, "You need a dream that will get you some goal." Don't be satisfied with limited success, he urged. "Bust through" in whatever field you pursue, he advised.

Three Dreams

McGuire revealed that in the last few years he realized two of three dreams that he had. One dream was to sit in the front of the bus. The MU coach admitted this was a rather peculiar ambition, but as a player, riding in the back of the bus, he always hoped to move up some day into the coach's spot in the front. And, he realized that when he became a coach.

A second dream that came true was to lead a team into Madison Square garden before an SRO (standing-room only) crowd. And McGuire realized this in the NIT finals several years against Southern Illinois.

A third ambition that McGuire didn't quite realize was to have his team play against Lew Alcindor and UCLA. The coach

MIAMI (AP) — Super Bowl North Bay Village Police De-hero Joe Namath admits he partment.

"cussed the cop out" after his arrest on a drunken driving charge, but contends he hadn't had a drink in two hours and only had three or four to begin with.

"Sure I cussed the cop out and I was wrong to do it," the New York Jets' quarterback declared after the incident early Monday.

"But I was sober," he said in an interview at the exclusive Palm Bay Club, his residence when in Miami.

"I had two here at the Palm Bay Club and either one or two at the Harbor Lounge before we left there about 2 a.m."

About 4:05 a.m., Namath's Broadway Joe's Restaurant, a rented 1969 Cadillac was pulled over on the 79th Street Causeway, a swinging nightclub strip.

Lonborg Lost To Red Sox Star Hurler Out Indefinitely With Shoulder Ailment

BOSTON (AP) — Jim Lonborg, the 1967 Cy Young Award winner who slumped to a 6-10 record last season, appears to be lost to the Boston Red Sox indefinitely because of a shoulder ailment.

Lonborg, a big right-hander whose career dipped sharply after a knee injury suffered in a skiing accident and then shoulder trouble in 1968, suffered a recurrence of his arm problems in spring training and again in the season opener at Baltimore a week ago.

He threw in the bullpen Monday and pitching coach Darrell Johnson relayed the bad news to Manager Dick Williams.

"Lonnie won't throw for a couple of days," Williams said. "It's a day-to-day situation."

"When he's ready, we'll send him to the bullpen until he's ready to start. Then I hope we'll be able to work him into the rotation as a fifth starter."

Pete Ward's 2-Run Double Gives White Sox 4-3 Win

Carlos May Also Drives Home Run in Eighth-Inning Rally; Royals Win to Retain Lead

By DICK COUCH Associated Press Sports Writer

Pete Ward and the Kansas City Royals have pocketed a pair of prized keepsakes—reluctantly gift-wrapped by Hoyt Wilhelm and John Kennedy.

Ward's two-run double off his first 1969 start. The Seattle knuckleballer climaxed a four-run eighth inning rally that swept the Chicago White Sox past the California Angels 4-3 Monday night.

Kansas City capitalized on two errors by Seattle shortstop Kennedy and nipped the Pilots 2-1 in the season's first meeting of American League expansion teams.

"It's so difficult to hit Wilhelm, I'm gonna clip out the box score and frame it," Ward said after bringing the White Sox from behind against the 45-year-old relief specialist, who pitched for Chicago last season.

Kennedy would like to forget Foy raced home from second with the winning run.

College Frosh Mentor Paul Engen Hired As Terrors' New Football Coach

Paul Engen, freshman football coach at Winona State College, Winona, Minn., has been hired as the new head football mentor at Appleton West High School.

Engen, this fall, will replace Ade Dillon, who resigned recently after 26 years as Terror head coach.

Engen, 27, also served as chief varsity football scout and assistant baseball coach at Winona State. Prior to his assignment at the college, Engen coached for three years at Braham High School, in Minnesota. After taking over a team that had won only two games in four years, Engen developed a unit that posted a 6-2 record in his third season — and the losses were by one point each.

Engen, who is expected to earn his masters degree in social studies by the end of the summer, will teach social studies at AHW-W. He is the father of a son and a daughter, and his wife is also a teacher.

In other Terror athletic developments, it was announced Monday that John Kading would replace Charles Hoeft as assistant football coach. Hoeft will give up coaching but will remain on the faculty. Kading, who has been wrestling coach in addition to serving as tennis coach, will give up wrestling to concentrate on football.

The new head wrestling coach will be Fred Resburg, who served in 1968-9 as Kading's assistant.

Alert Knicks Stay Alive With 112-104 Win Over Celtics

By MIKE RECHT
NEW YORK (AP) — With their backs against the wall, the New York Knicks have resorted to thievery to make sure their no tomorrow wasn't today in the National Basketball Association playoffs.

Stealing time by swiping the ball, the Knicks fought off elimination in their Eastern Division final series against Boston by beating the Celtics 112-104 Monday night to cut their deficit to 3-2 in the best-of-7 series.

"But we still have to get that game back we lost here," said Dick Barnett, thinking ahead to the Knicks' next all-or-nothing test in Friday's sixth game in Boston while looking back to their series opening loss in New York which cost them the home-court advantage.

Boston still needs only one victory to eliminate the Knicks and advance to the NBA final against the Western Division winner—Los Angeles or Atlanta.

Statistics Lie
The Lakers take their 2-0 lead into the third game of that best-of-7 set, which continues tonight in Atlanta.

Despite the figures which show only an eight-point victory and Boston outshooting the Knicks from the field, 52.5 percent to 44.3, New York rebounded from a one-point loss Sunday in Boston for an easy victory Monday.

"You can't pinpoint one man," said Sam Jones of the Celtics. "They all played well. They had a job to do and they did it. They knew if they didn't win there would be no tomorrow."

Player-coach Bill Russell of the Celtics, who had only six rebounds and six points when the Knicks took control in the first half, also gave New York credit.

"We took only 80 shots and threw the ball away 25 times," he said. "Sloppy, but New York's defense contributed to it."

"I don't remember getting many free shots," agreed John Havlicek, whose 29 points led Boston.

"When you get 17 more shots than a team, you should beat them," said Willis Reed, who led the Knicks' balanced offense with 24 points.

Leading the thieves, as usual, was quick-handed Walt Frazier, who also scored 23 points and led the Knicks with 12 rebounds and nine assists.

"Aggressive defense," he called it. "We knew we had to go out and win and we knew we had to do it with defense."

The Knicks opened a 54-36 lead and then increased it to 81-57 before the Celtics came on in the final minutes to make the score respectable.

"Now it's time for us to win one up there (in Boston)," said Reed, already thinking about another no tomorrow.

way Park appearance since he suffered a serious eye injury two years ago.

The White Sox went into the eighth trailing 3-0, with just one hit off Jim McGlothlin. But successive singles by Gail Hopkins, Buddy Bradford and pinch hitter Walt Williams produced one run and chased the Angels starter.

Wilhelm came on and fanned Duane Josephson, but Carlos May doubled home another run and Ward stroked his go-ahead double one out later.

Dick Stuart homered for the Angels off winner Tommy John. Roy poked four hits for the Royals, who remained atop the league's West Division, reliever Dave Wickersham rescued winning pitcher Roger Nelson from a bases-loaded jam in the ninth.

Tommy Harper doubled off Nelson in the first and moved around to score on two ground outs, but the Kansas City right-hander allowed only five more hits before filling the bases on three walks in the ninth. Wickersham came out of the bullpen and retired Mike Hegon on a foul pop for the last out.

Conigliaro, who sat out the 1968 season after being hit in the eye by a Jack Hamilton pitch on Aug. 18, 1967, broke a 3-3 tie in the fourth by beating out a bases-loaded roller down the third base line.

The Red Sox banged out 14 hits on the way to their fifth victory in six games. Winner Ray Culp allowed five hits, including Elrod Hendricks' three-run homer, before giving way to reliever Sparky Lyle in the eighth.

sophomore; Houston and Drake.

Following the news conference, Alcindor was given a birthday party by the Bucks. He will be 22 years old Wednesday.

Among those present were teammates Len Chappell, Dick Cunningham, Guy Rodgers, Flynn Robinson, Sam Williams and Charlie Paulk, Milwaukee's No. 1 draft choice a year ago who is on leave from Army duty at Ft. Campbell, Ky.

Like Starting Over
"It will be just like playing in high school again," he said at a news conference.

Lew hastened to explain that in college he did not have to play against top caliber centers every game.

"But in high school, we had to play all out every game," he added.

"It will be up to Coach (Larence, Alcindor was given a) Costello as to how I will play," the nation's top college player said. "He knows much more about the pro game than I do."

The giant center revealed he had accidentally cut his knee with a razor blade after arriving in Milwaukee.

Several stitches were required to close the wound.

"It wasn't a bad cut," he said. "It just wouldn't stop bleeding."

Nixon Spells Out His Budget Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon unveiled today more details about budget cuts said to represent "hard choice and potentially unpopular decisions." The only agency to wind up with more money is the Justice Department.

Announcing new spending figures for each agency under a revised budget calculated to produce a $5.8 billion surplus in the fiscal year starting July 1, Nixon revealed more than half of the $4 billion in reductions he is claiming come out of defense and military-aid programs and scaled down legislation to increase Social Security benefits.

The cut in planned military spending, put at $1.1 billion, was attributed largely to "lower consumption of ammunition in Vietnam," a cutback of the anti-ballistic missile program proposed by former President Lyndon B. Johnson and "modification" of the fiscal year starting July 1, purchases of short-range attack missiles.

Another $1 billion of the reductions was attributed to whitening down another Johnson plan, but never transmitted to Congress, which included in his January budget—to increase Social Security benefits.

Nixon called for a 7 per cent increase in those benefits and to step up anticrime measures, proposed liberalization of the retirement test so retired persons can retain their benefits while receiving increased outside earnings.

The $4 billion in claimed savings cut all across the board, although some individual programs within agencies were granted increases.

The Justice Department budget was boosted $16 million to $750 million, a reflection of Nixon's plans, yet to be spelled out, to step up anticrime measures.

In a statement, the Budget Bureau said the revisions embrace "hard decisions on priorities, important program reforms and targeted new initiatives."

"All are part of the administration's concern for the cities, for the poor and for fundamental change in the domestic program systems of the federal government," it said.

The revised budget calls for a 10 per cent increase in spending for the poor in the coming fiscal year—a boost from $24.4 billion to $26.9 billion.

The administration claimed its budget provides more actual cash assistance to the poor than Johnson had proposed in January because of removal of a freeze on aid to families with dependent children—a $307 million item.

"Hard choice and potentially unpopular decisions have not been avoided," the statement said. "Where good judgment dictated a budget reduction because we believe a program has outlived its usefulness, that decision has been made."

The new budget was said to mark the start "of a major effort by this administration to redirect the course of the federal government in domestic affairs."

It was described as starting the nation "on the road toward basic program reform" and the development of "needed new initiatives in social problem solving."

Two departments with heavy responsibilities in dealing with social ills—Health, Education and Welfare and Housing and Urban Development—shared in the budget cuts. HUD spending estimates were cut by $74 million to $2.8 billion while HEW's forecast outlays reduced by $179 million to $50.5 billion.

Over-all reductions in "human resources" programs were put at $390 million.

A $420 million cut was attributed largely to reductions in the programs of the Post Office and Transportation Departments. In agriculture and natural resources, the cutback came to $345 million.

Atomic energy and space programs were reduced by $140 million. The budget for veterans showed a drop of $245 million—mostly reflecting planned sales of assets—and about $185 million was dropped from international programs.

U.S. Plane Missing Off N. Korea Coast declined to give further details in public.

At the White House, press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said President Nixon was awakened "early this morning" to be told about the missing plane.

Ziegler declined to say just when Nixon was awakened, but said the information was relayed to the President by telephone from Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, his special assistant for national security affairs.

Pentagon records indicated this would be the first U.S. plane to be shot down by North Korea in 10 years.

In June 1959 a Navy P4 patrol plane was attacked by a MIG jet in the Sea of Japan about 85 miles east of Wonsan, North Korea. A tail gunner was seriously wounded in that incident but the damaged plane returned safely to a base in Japan.

At the Pentagon, Daniel Z. Henkin, the Defense Department's chief spokesman, dodged questions on what may have happened but said "the aircraft was in communication with its base during its mission."

The North Korean news agency in a broadcast monitored in Tokyo, claimed the plane intruded deep into North Korean air space and was shot down at 1:50 p.m.—10:50 p.m. CST Monday.

Henkin told newsmen the unarmed plane, jammed with six tons of electronic equipment including radar and gear to intercept radio messages, "was flying a routine reconnaissance track similar to hundreds of missions which have been flown over international waters in that area since 1950."

Aboard the plane, flying out of Atsugi, Japan, was a crew of 30 Navy men and one Marine enlisted man.

"We have no information at this time which confirms the sighting of any survivors," Henkin said.

eral area, within 200 miles of where the U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo and its 83 crewmen were captured last year.

In advance of the two destroyers, the Navy sent a big HC130 Hercules rescue aircraft accompanied by a KC135 tanker and combat patrol cover.

Henkin estimated the two destroyers would reach the search and rescue area about 7 a.m. CST Wednesday.

Seas in the area were described as moderate with waves of about four feet and winds of 10 to 16 knots. The air temperature was reported 10 to 16 degrees above freezing temperature, with the sea slightly warmer.

South Korean diplomatic sources said their government was informed that the airplane was attacked over the high seas more than 100 miles from the coastline.

The State Department declined to comment on that report, referring questioners to the Defense Department.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said congressional leaders were told at the White House that this was the eighth reconnaissance flight the plane had made.

"Sitting Duck"

Dirksen and Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., the assistant GOP leader, told reporters they were informed that the propeller-driven plane was a "sitting duck" for any fighter attack.

They said it was unarmed and unaccompanied on what was described as an "elliptical" course 50 miles off the North Korean coastline.

Reaction in Congress was serious but it stopped short of demands for retaliation.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said the incident creates "a very grave situation." But he said it would be up to the President and his military advisers to decide on an appropriate response.

Sen. Peter H. Dominick, R-Colo., a committee member, said the United States "should issue a pretty strong warning" to the North Koreans and should begin providing armed protection for its reconnaissance vehicles.

But he said he is not sure whether the United States should retaliate, explaining, "I'd like to learn more of the details first."

Affirmative Response

Sen. Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., said he would not go so far as to recommend retaliation at this time, but he added the American response "should be much more affirmative if this turns out to be a second Pueblo."

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., commented that, "We can't go on indefinitely like this. Something has got to give. The question is whether or not we are already overextended in our commitments around the world."

The broadcast gave no information on the fate of those aboard.

It said only that the North Korean air force shot the plane down at a high altitude "by showering fire of revenge upon it."

The U.S. Defense Department said a four-engine Navy EC121 propeller reconnaissance plane based at Atsugi, Japan, has been missing since 2 p.m.

The EC121 is heavily loaded with electronic gear, as was the U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo which was captured off the North Korean coast on Jan. 23, 1968. The U.S. claimed at the time the ship was in international waters about 25 miles off the North Korean coast.

Search operations today apparently were centered within 200 miles of where the Pueblo and its 83 crewmen were captured. The crew was released late last year.

The missing airplane is a converted Lockheed Super Constellation which has a big hump in the top of the fuselage to carry radar and other monitoring devices.

"It is a large-crew airplane," the spokesman said, confirming that 31 men would not be an unusual number to be aboard. The monitoring equipment requires a number of operators.

The North Korean agency said the "U.S. imperialist aggressor army which has been rapidly intensifying the war provocation maneuvers against (North Korea) of late perpetrated on the morning of the 15th the grave provocation of infiltrating deep into the territorial air of the republic a large-size modernly equipped reconnaissance plane to conduct reconnaissance, while perpetrating grave provocations along the military demarcation line."

It said the North Korean air force "instantly spotted" the plane and "scored the brilliant battle success" of shooting it down.

Congressmen Told Major Weapon In Battle on Hunger Must be Cash

WASHINGTON (AP) — Only a total attack, with cash as the major weapon, can solve America's problems of hunger and poverty, the head of a presidential commission has told Congress.

Industrialist Ben Heineman, chairman of the President's Commission on Income Maintenance Programs, reported to the special Senate hunger committee Monday on the eve of its all-day tour of poor areas in the capital.

"Even assuming all food programs worked well enough to provide adequate diets—and I said, adding that many of the rest are in families without a male head.

"The Nixon administration has placed considerable stress on jobs in fighting poverty but Heineman said, "We may be deluding ourselves that this is a solution to the problem."

Heineman, chairman of Northwest Industries, a conglomerate which controls the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad and Lone Star Steel Co., was named to head the commission by former President Johnson. He said a final report is expected to be released by late September or early October.

woman was killed and eight others injured.

When the policemen identified themselves, they said, Kulak fired through the door with an automatic weapon, wounding Detective William McInerney, 45, Detective Michael A. Spiotto said Kulak moments later emptied a carbine into Sgt. James Schaffter, 48, and Det. Jerome A. Stubb, 40, whose bodies were found later on the porch of the three-story brick building.

At this point, police said, Kulak barricaded himself in his apartment. He was armed with what a police spokesman called "a small arsenal."

Police exchanged gunfire with Kulak for nearly an hour. Several grenades and bombs, hurled or shot by Kulak, raked nearby buildings and shattered windows up to two blocks away.

Deputy Police Supt. James Rochford eventually talked Kulak into allowing him to come up alone and unarmed. Kulak, with a pistol in hand, met Rochford on the third floor landing.

Rochford talked with Kulak for nearly an hour. At 9:15, Kulak surrendered.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW
By John Behnke

Did you know that President Nixon was on a college football squad for 3 years, in 1931, '32 and '33? ... Mr. Nixon went out for football at Whittier College and played at both tackle and end positions ... He weighed less than 150 pounds then and never became a regular although he was able to make the squad each year.

Did you ever realize all the illnesses that Bob Gibson had before he became one of the top pitchers in baseball? ... As a child, he had a severe case of rickets ... Later he was hospitalized with pneumonia ... Still later he developed a rheumatic heart ... When he got to high school he was too frail to play football ... As an adult, Gibson has such a high threshold of pain that, in 1967 he was hit on the leg with a line drive, and it turned out his leg was broken from that drive—but he stayed on the mound and pitched to 3 more batters before surrendering to the pain and leaving the game!

Of all the men who have ever been professional boxers, which one had the most pro fights? ... The record is held by Abe Hollandersky who was known as "Abe the Newsboy" ... He had the amazing total of 1,309 pro fights in his career—and there is no one even close to that record ... Imagine having that many pro bouts ... And to top it off, Abe was also a wrestler and participated in hundreds of wrestling matches in his spare time!

I bet you didn't know ... a new shipment of Apache neck scarfs is here. $1.50 indicated that this was the reason MU had chosen the NCAA tourney instead of the NIT this year. "The bigger the challenge, the more effort it takes," said McGuire.

Desire to Win Stressed by MU's McGuire

McGuire admitted that he let his feelings prior to the tourney game against Kentucky get out of proportion. "I cried before the game," said McGuire. "I'll never psyche that hard for a game again," he vowed.

In commenting on the memorable state prep title game between Neenah and Beloit, McGuire admitted that he left the UW fieldhouse during the timeout that preceded Lamont Weaver's a m a z i n g mid-court field goal. He said he felt that Neenah's material was not as good as Beloit's but the Rockers' teamwork and desire were superior. The game did a lot for high school ball in this state," said McGuire.

Thirty-four athletes received awards from the Little Chute Jaycees and The Post-Crescent. Football players honored were Kaukauna's Pat Bratigan; Kimberly's Jim DeGoey, Wayne Liethen and Phil VanGrinsven; Little Chute's Mike Fitzpatrick; St. John's Steve Hietpas, Leon Biesterveld, Gary Vandefey, and Ken Van Eperen; Fox Lutheran's Beck Goldbeck; Xavier's Dick Kessler, Bill Pfeifferle, Ralph Kessler and Brad Graff; Menasha's Tom Scovronski; St. Mary's Mike Griesbach, Dave Beackofski, and Pat Herms; Appleton West's Tom Parish; Appleton East's Doug Stroess, and Neenah's "Skip" Iltus, Brian Canoe, Greg Schulz and Jim Hoelzel.

Basketball players feted were Kimberly's Jeff Wildenberg, Bill Lamers and Don Hagany; Neenah's Tom Kopitzke, Pat Hawley and Tom Koepke; St. John's Gary Vandefey; Menasha's Ron Haack; Xavier's Bob Fullarton and Mike Clark and AHS's Tom Jones.

'It Kind of Jumped on Me,' Says Ward of Wilhelm Pitch

ANAHEIM (AP) — What do three straight singles for one you tell a player who has never batted against knuckleballer Hoyt Wilhelm when he comes to bat against him with the go-ahead runs on base?

"I just told him to go up there and swing," said Chicago Manager Al Lopez.

So that's exactly what Pete Ward did. He pulled an inside knuckler to the right center field wall for a double that Aparicio drove in the winning run as the White Sox edged the Angels 4-3 Monday night.

"I'm going to clip out the box score and frame it," said wanted to, Ward said. It still Ward, happily after Monday night's win. "I've been watching him throw for years, and I've seen batters fall down trying 3-0 lead with single runs in the to get a hit. I once saw Brooks first, sixth and seventh innings. Robinson, who is a pretty good Rick Reichardt singled in a run hitter, swing at a pitch them in the first Jay Johnstone catcher had to dive for."

The White Sox went into the out in the sixth, and Dick Stuart, eighth inning trailing 3-0. Start-off the seventh with a 380-r Jim McGlothlin, who shut out home run over the right out Chicago on one hit trailing field wall—his first hit as an through seven innings, allowed Angel

Hurls Second Victory Cubs' Holtzman Eyes Long, Quiet Summer

By JOE MOOSHL

CHICAGO (AP) — Ken Holtzman, the Chicago Cubs' flashy left-hander, is hoping for a long, quiet summer so that he might help pitch his ball club to the National League pennant.

Holtzman who has yet to have an uninterrupted season in the majors, hurled the Cubs into first place in the East Division of the National League Monday with a 4-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Although he walked four of the first eight men he faced and yielded seven hits in a steady drizzle, Holtzman gained his second victory of the young season and helped the Cubs to their sixth in seven games.

"I wasn't wild," said Holtzman about the first inning when he walked the bases loaded with one out but managed to wriggle out of trouble.

"I was close and a couple of

ACT NOW — YOU MUST MAIL ENROLLMENT-APPLICATION BELOW BY MIDNIGHT, SATURDAY, APRIL 26, OR IT CANNOT BE ACCEPTED

Here are the questions you'd normally ask your insurance man. But we answered them instead . . . so you would be able to insure yourself, right from this page. (You'll be amazed how much it saves you.)

1 When can I collect up to $10,000.00?

Every time you go to the hospital you collect $100.00 a week to a maximum of $10,000.00 cash. Not just once, but for every new confinement! And you collect cash not just for yourself, but for every Covered Member of your family—including spouse and children!

2 How can I collect up to $7,000.00 extra cash—if I'm over 65?

If you are over 65 we pay you $70.00-a-week extra cash in addition to Medicare. This is extra. You collect it for each illness or injury—each time you go to the hospital. Right up to $7,000.00 extra cash!

3 How can I collect up to $5,000.00 additional—for a Registered Nurse at home?

You collect an extra $100.00-a-week cash—up to $5,000.00—any time you have been in the hospital 3 days or more and your doctor has you employ a full-time registered nurse at home within 5 days after you leave the hospital. This money is extra. You get it on top of any other money we pay you.

4 When do I collect up to $2,000.00 extra cash for accidents?

We pay you $1,000.00 extra cash for complete accidental loss of one hand or one foot or sight of one eye, and $2,000.00 extra cash for loss of both hands or both feet or sight of both eyes—even if it happens as long as 3 months after the accident. This is all extra money. You collect it on top of any other benefits we pay you. Not just for yourself, but for every Covered Member of your family!

5 What if I am hospitalized by the same illness—again?

Don't worry. You still collect to the maximum of $10,000.00. And if you've already resumed full normal activities for just 90 days—we call it a "new confinement". Which means you can collect all over again, up to another $10,000.00!

6 If I collect more money than my medical bills cost—do I keep the extra cash?

You certainly do! We pay you $100.00 cash every week—even if your bills add up to just a fraction of that amount! So it's possible to come out of the hospital dollars ahead!

7 If I already have some health insurance—will you pay me anyway?

Of course! Never mind what you receive from Blue Cross, or Major Medical, or Workman's Compensation, or Medicare, or any other company's insurance you may have. (Even for the same illness!) We still pay you $100.00-a-week extra cash income to the maximum of $10,000.00 cash. So if other insurance has taken care of some—or even all—of your medical bills . . . you still have that extra cash income from Presidential. Maybe hundreds of dollars extra. Isn't that a nice way to end an illness?

8 Do you pay me cash even for my children too?

Yes! And not just once, but every time they go to the hospital too! Under the Family Plan you receive $50.00-a-week extra cash to a maximum of $5,000.00 for each eligible dependent child between the ages of 3 months and 19 years old.

9 Will "future" children be protected too?

They surely will! And at no extra cost. Under the Family Plan with Maternity you simply notify us when your "new addition" is 3 months old. We cover him or her (or them) automatically.

10 Will you pay me $100.00-a-week cash—even for pregnancy?

Yes, even for pregnancy! Many health plans DON'T cover pregnancy. But we do. Under the Family Plan with Maternity you collect $100.00 a week to a maximum of $10,000.00 cash for each pregnancy, childbirth or miscarriage that results in a hospital stay when both parents have been enrolled in the plan for the entire period of pregnancy.

11 When does my estate collect an extra $1,000.00 accidental death benefit?

In case of accidental death to any covered member of your family—even if it happens as long as 3 months after the accident.

12 Why do you pay me higher cash benefits every year—without charging me a higher rate?

Because medical services cost more every year. So we feel you should be paid more every year. The first year we pay you $100.00 a week. But the second year we increase that—automatically—to $103.00 a week. The third year to $106.00 a week. And so on, all the way up to a full $130 a week the eleventh year and thereafter. That way your cash benefits rise to meet the rising cost of living. But the low premium you pay doesn't rise one penny (even though the price of everything else may be skyrocketing)!

13 Are there times I might collect even more than $10,000.00?

Yes there are! If you and your spouse are both hospitalized. Or one of you goes more than once. Or even both of you more than once. Or if a child gets sick. Or someone has an accident—or whatever—you could very possibly collect not just up to $10,000.00 cash but as much as $20,000.00 . . . $30,000.00 . . . even $40,000.00 or more! We hope it never happens, of course, but isn't it reassuring to know you are so well protected if it does?

14 Can I spend my cash benefits any way I please?

Certainly! You can even put them in the bank to replace funds spent while you were laid up in the hospital without an income. It's your money!

15 Does all cash come straight to me?

Yes, straight to you. NOT to the doctor or hospital. (Unless, of course, you ask us to.)

16 Must I pay taxes on the money you send me?

Certainly NOT! Every dollar is 100% tax-free.

17 Can I ever stop paying premiums—yet still remain fully covered?

Yes—if you (the person to whom the basic policy is issued) are hospitalized just 8 weeks or more, all premiums for you and all Covered Members that come due while you are still in the hospital after this period will be paid by Presidential. And your protection continues as if you were paying the premiums yourself! Then if you leave the hospital and must return for the same condition before you have resumed full normal activities for 180 days, Presidential will again pay any premiums while you are in the hospital—to a maximum of 2 years—for the total confinement! Your full protection remains in force—you collect up to $10,400.00 for each confinement!

18 How can you give me so much—for so little?

Because you deal direct with the company—direct with Presidential itself! You virtually "write your own policy". Right off this page. No middleman needed! Costly "processing charges" are eliminated. So is "red tape". You do each simple step yourself—in your own home . . . in your own good time . . . by making up your own mind. And of course, dealing by mail is confidential. No one need know your personal affairs—except you!

19 Doesn't enrolling by mail take away the "personal" touch?

Certainly not! We give you more personal service, not less. But instead of getting it when you sign up—YOU GET IT WHEN YOU SUBMIT A CLAIM! That's where it really means something. And that's where Presidential gives you plenty of service.

20 All right, now that you mention it—how do I go about submitting a claim?

As a Presidential policyowner you're entitled to contact FAST CLAIM HEADQUARTERS direct. No frantic attempts to locate your broker. No anxious waiting. If you have an accident or want to make a claim, don't hesitate—CONTACT US DIRECT! Even if you only have a question—don't worry about "inconveniencing" or "annoying" anyone. WE ARE ALWAYS READY AND HAPPY TO GIVE YOU THE PROMPT, COURTEOUS AND DIRECT ATTENTION YOU ARE ENTITLED TO AS OUR POLICYOWNER!

21 How else do you save me money by cutting "red tape"?

No long complicated applications or embarrassing personal "investigations"! The short Enrollment-Application on this page tells us all we need to know. Notice it doesn't ask for a medical examination before your policy is issued. Or set an age limit (as long as you haven't been refused any health, hospital, or life insurance, we don't care if you're over 100!). Most important, we enroll many persons simultaneously! Not one policy at a time the old-fashioned way—but thousands at once. Using all the economies of mass printing and latest computer techniques. That's how we can give you so much for only 25¢.

22 Now tell me what's the "catch"—what doesn't my policy cover?

Get ready for a welcome surprise. Your policy covers absolutely EVERYTHING except conditions caused by (a) war or act of war; (b) any mental disease or disorder, intoxicants and narcotics; (c) where care is in a U.S. Government hospital; (d) pregnancy, except as provided under the Maternity Benefit provision; and (e) expenses resulting from any sickness or injury you had before the effective date of your protection—but even this "exclusion" is done away with after you've been a policyowner for two years. Everything else is definitely covered. (Item "e", by the way, is a real help if you already have a health problem. It means that even if you were sick before you took out this policy—you will even be covered for that condition after the policy has been in effect for only 2 years.)

23 Will I collect from my first day of hospitalization?

Yes. You start collecting as soon as you enter the hospital. (Coverage for injury begins when your policy goes into force. Coverage for sickness begins 30 days after the Effective Date of the policy.)

24 Will my protection be cancelled because I have too many claims?

Presidential guarantees never to cancel your protection because you have too many claims or because of advanced age. We also guarantee never to refuse to renew your policy unless the premium is not paid before the end of the grace period or unless renewal is declined on all policies of this type in your entire state.

25 What about "advancing age"—will I have to pay more?

Again—positively not! Even if you are age 100 we will not raise your rates. Nor will we cancel your protection because of age.

26 Why do I need this $100.00-a-week cash protection?

Because U.S. Government figures show that in the past few years alone . . . medical costs have DOUBLED! Yet few people have anywhere near enough protection to meet such expenses. And no one knows whose turn it will be next—yours or mine. But we both know that once the doctor says it is your turn to enter the hospital, it is too late to buy coverage at any price. That's why this special protection was designed to give you "extra help" you need—when you need it.

27 When may I apply for this protection?

The question is not "when may" but "when must". YOU ABSOLUTELY MUST APPLY BY THE DATE SHOWN ON THE ENROLLMENT FORM ON THIS PAGE. YOUR 25¢ AND COMPLETED FORM MUST BE POST-MARKED NO LATER THAN THAT DATE. OR IT CANNOT BE ACCEPTED.

Medical Costs Skyrocketing!

(Source: U.S. Dept. of Health, Education & Welfare)

United States Government figures reveal your present health protection . . . may no longer protect you against today's rising medical costs! Don't leave your loved ones defenseless! Act at once to add coverage that provides to a maximum of $10,000.00 health protection for only 25¢ for the first month for you and your entire family.

28 Why do I have to apply before the deadline date?

Because, as explained in Question 21, we must receive your Enrollment-Application the same time as all the others in order to give you the savings that come from processing many policies simultaneously. For this reason we simply cannot extend the date shown on the enrollment form.

29 When will my policy arrive?

Right away! We mail your policy as soon as we accept your Enrollment-Application and 25¢. Examine it in the privacy of your own home. It's a very short document and you'll be pleasantly surprised to discover—THERE IS NO "FINE PRINT"! If you wish, show it to someone you trust—perhaps your lawyer, accountant or banker. Better still, show it to your own insurance man—even though he may very well be working for another insurance company. If he is a personal friend, he has your best interest at heart. So you can believe him when he tells you there is no better bargain available anywhere—at any price.

30 What if I change my mind—can I get my money back?

You certainly can! Even after you mail your Enrollment-Application . . . even after you examine your policy in your own home and talk it over with anyone you wish . . . even after all this you are still free to change your mind. Simply return the policy within 15 days and your quarter will be refunded, at once. There will be no obligation whatever. Meanwhile all during the 15 days you are making up your mind, you will be protected by $100.00-a-week extra cash benefits for injury from the Effective Date on the policy—even if you finally decide to return the policy and get your quarter back. But we don't think you'll want your quarter back. We think, instead, you'll want to continue your valuable protection at Presidential's amazing low rates. Just choose the Plan below that's best for you.

Plan I—Individual(s) Only Plan:

If you want to cover yourself—or yourself and one or more adult dependents (including your spouse)—then this is the Plan for you. Each person must be 18 or over, and pays (per person) the rate applicable to his or her age.

Age at Enrollment	Monthly Premium
18-39	only $3.95
40-49	only $4.95
50-59	only $5.95
60-74	only $6.95
75 and over	only $8.95

Plan II—Family Plan With Maternity

This plan is for the family that is still growing. To the total of the monthly premium for the adults to be insured, just add $5. This entitles you to all maternity benefits. It also covers all your unmarried, dependent children between the ages of 3 months and 19 years who live at home. Future dependent children will be covered when they reach 3 months of age and without any additional charge.

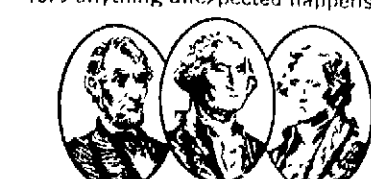

Plan III—Family Plan Without Maternity

This plan is for the family that is no longer growing. To the total of the monthly premium for the adults to be insured, just add $3. This covers all your unmarried, dependent children between the ages of 3 months and 19 years who live at home.

NOTE: The regular monthly premium shown here (for your age at time of enrollment) is the same low premium you will continue to pay; it will not automatically increase as you pass from one age bracket to the next. Once you have enrolled, your rate can never be changed because of how much or how often you collect from us—or because of advanced age—but only if there is a general rate adjustment, up or down, on all policies of this type in your entire state.

31 How do I enroll?

If what you have read on this page makes good honest sense to you . . . if you find yourself agreeing with thousands of other Americans who welcome this sensible way to save money by "insuring themselves"—then by all means act on your own good instincts and mail the Enrollment-Application with 25¢ now! Please act without delay. NO SALESMAN WILL CALL. And you'll have plenty of time after you mail the enrollment form to change your mind. (There's a money-back guarantee with no obligation.) Please mail it NOW—because once accident or illness strikes—it's TOO LATE to buy protection at any price. Remember, the sooner you mail your form, the sooner your protection will start. So act today—before anything unexpected happens.

N. Korea Claims U.S. Spy Plane Shot Down

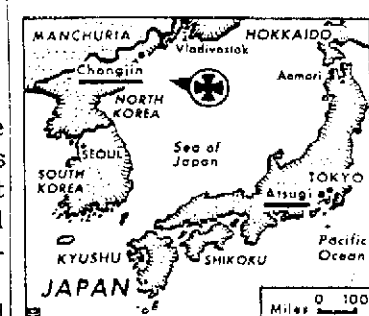

31 Persons Are Aboard Lost Craft

TOKYO (AP) — The North Koreans, who captured the intelligence ship Pueblo, reported their air force shot down a large U.S. reconnaissance plane today. The U.S. Defense Department said a Navy reconnaissance plane with 31 aboard was missing in the Sea of Japan.

Japanese fishing boats joined U.S. planes in a search for survivors. The U.S. Embassy in Moscow asked the Foreign Ministry for the assistance of any Soviet ships in the area.

In Washington, the Defense Department said the Navy EC121 plane was flying "a rouline reconnaissance track" which kept it at least 50 nautical miles from the North Korean coastline.

The Pentagon did not immediately confirm that the North Koreans shot down the huge electronics-packed aircraft but said only that a broad search was launched for the plane and its crew of 31 in the Sea of Japan.

At the Capitol, however, Vice Adm. J. B. Colwell, deputy chief of naval operations, talked as though hostile action were involved.

He called the incident "a clear case of international piracy and a breach of international law." He talked briefly with newsmen before going into a closed session of the House Armed Services Committee. He

Neil Armstrong

Landing Due July 20

Armstrong to be First on Moon?

SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — A civilian spaceman may make his mark in history by taking a walk.

The stroll would be on the surface of the moon, and space officials said Monday that Neil Armstrong, commander of Apollo 11, is scheduled to be the first man to make it.

Apollo 11 is planned for launch from Cape Kennedy July 16. The landing is expected on July 20.

George Low, director of the Apollo spacecraft program office, said Monday it was intended that Armstrong, 38, would be the first man to set foot on the Earth's satellite after he and Air Force Col. Edwin E. Aldrin, 39, land the Apollo 11 lunar module there.

If all goes according to plan, Armstrong will explore for two hours and 40 minutes, and will be joined by Aldrin several minutes after he takes the first step.

Low said the space duo would land on the moon and immediately throw the switches that would leave the module ready for an immediate launch should an emergency develop.

Then Armstrong and Aldrin will rest for four hours aboard the little craft. Low said he didn't expect either to get much sleep.

Armstrong will start the moon surface stroll by opening the lunar module hatch and descending a ladder.

One of his first acts, Low said, would be to gather a sample of moon rock, the first of 50 pounds Armstrong and Aldrin will pick up.

With the rocks safely in hand, Armstrong will test the ability of man to perform on the airless moon surface wearing a bulky space suit and handicapped by the satellite's lesser gravity.

Near the end of the two-hour-and-40 minute period on the surface, the pair will hurry back to the safety of the lunar module.

Low said the two would be on the lunar surface a total of 22 hours, but would spend only a fraction of that time outside the module.

During their moon walk, he said, they will get no farther than 50 to 100 feet from their craft.

1 of 4 Verdicts Possible

Sirhan's Fate Up to Jury

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The fate of Sirhan Bishara Sirhan rests with a jury that must weigh this question: how ill was he, mentally, when he killed Robert F. Kennedy?

The bantamweight, 25-year-old Jordanian Arab who put a gun to the head of the New York senator last June 5 watched stolidly as the jury of seven men and five women filed from the courtroom Monday to decide his fate.

Instructed by Judge Herbert V. Walker to be "uninfluenced by pity for the defendant or by passion or by prejudice against him," the jury can return any of four possible verdicts:

—First degree murder — asked by the state—with the penalty of life in prison or death. The penalty would be determined by the jury in a separate session.

—Second degree murder — asked by the defense — with the term of five years to life in prison.

—Manslaughter, one to 10 years.

—Acquittal.

The defense contended that Sirhan's mind was so blurred that the crime didn't meet the legal definition of first degree murder. But it did not ask for the other possible verdicts of manslaughter or outright acquittal.

Prosecutor Lynn D. Compton.

Sirhan Sirhan

in his final argument, had this to say about the testimony of mental experts in the case:

"The psychiatrists say if you hate a man a little bit and kill him, you are responsible and mature; but if you hate him a lot and kill him, you are not responsible and not mature."

Compton wound up with a plea to the jury not to "put a premium on hate" by returning a verdict of less than first degree.

Sirhan turned once to his brother Adel—in the spectator section 15 feet away—and mouthed the words: "Where's mother?"

Adel explained later that Mary Sirhan, who had given her son quiet support from her second-row seat throughout the 14 weeks of trial, "felt she just couldn't go through this day."

"Sick Mind"

Defense attorney Grant B. Cooper told the jury, in his closing argument last week, that Sirhan's motive for the killing "from his sick mind was a good motive. It was a good motive in his mind. He thought it was right."

Compton, sitting on a table, told the jury that Cooper had raised the question, "Is Sirhan a bad guy so we won't hold him responsible?"

The prosecutor leaned forward and said: "They like him. They say, 'I don't like him. I think he is a cunning, vicious man'."

A fleeting smile crossed Sirhan's face.

"We are not here to decide whether Sirhan was a clever assassin or even a smart one."

Compton said. "That is not the issue. It is simply, was his premeditation of the sufficient quality that you, the jurors, feel that he should be held responsible?"

The judge said the jury would sit daily until 4 p.m. The deliberations begin about 8:30 each morning.

Two Policemen Slain in Chicago

Ex-Marine Armed 'With Arsenal' Finally Gives Up

CHICAGO (AP) — Two policemen were slain in a shootout with a former Marine suspected of planting a number of bombs in public places, one of which killed a woman a week ago in a department store.

Firing rifles and pistols and hurling homemade bombs, Frank Kulak, 42-year-old veteran of fighting in World War II and Korea, barricaded himself Monday in his third-floor flat on the city's South Side to hold off police seeking to question him.

The bullet-riddled bodies of the policemen were found on a third-floor porch after Kulak surrendered.

Two other policemen and a civilian were wounded in the prolonged exchange of shots and several others were injured by falling debris from the explosions.

Kulak told police that he wanted to show people the horror of war.

Before he was taken away in a patrol car, Kulak was asked why he did it.

"Well, they came at me," he said. "The police, that's who. They came after me."

The siege began when three policemen went to Kulak's door about 3 p.m. to question him about several recent South Side bombings, including an explosion April 7 at a store in which a

Double Tragedy Brought to Town By 'Drag' Race

REXBURG, Idaho (AP) — Betsy Anderson, 16, a quiet, well-liked sophomore at Madison High School, was in the back seat of a car driven by her father. Lights came up fast from the rear. Suddenly, impact.

Betsy was killed.

Residents of a nearby farmhouse rushed to the door upon hearing the crash. Through darkness they saw two twisted autos. And they said they saw another—it was white—roar up and stop.

The white car's driver, Drake Smith, 18, and passenger Bruce Ard ran to the accident. Smith shouted to the farmhouse: "Call an ambulance. And the sheriff. Hurry."

Betsy's family had been on the way to their rural home after spending Saturday evening at Idaho Falls. She had taken in a movie while her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Z. Anderson, square danced.

Gives First Aid

Now, at midnight, young Smith—a friend and senior at Madison High—administered first aid to the survivors, as did Ard, while fighting realization that Betsy was dead.

Betsy's parents and three occupants of the collision's other car, driver Teddy Bischoff, 21, Kent Zollinger, 19, and Kenneth Firth 18, were taken to the Rexburg hospital. None was critically hurt.

As the ambulances pulled away, Deputy Sheriff Blair Seipert briefly questioned Smith and Ard. He knew both. Most everyone knows everyone in the Rexburg area. The town has a population of about 7,000.

Seipert says two told him that they had been about 200 yards behind the Bischoff car and had not seen brake lights before it crashed into the Anderson car.

Seipert liked and respected Smith. So did his classmates and friends. He was handsome. An honor student who was halfback on the football team. President of the school Agriculture Club.

The deputy sent the boys home, then went to the hospital to ask more questions, particularly of Bischoff, Zollinger and Firth.

"What I learned—gradually—is that Teddy Bischoff and Drake Smith were in a drag race," Seipert says. "Bischoff had gotten ahead."

Early Sunday afternoon, Seipert called the home of Drake's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Smith, about six miles from Rexburg. Drake answered.

"I am told there was a drag race," Seipert said, "and that a white car was involved. I want you to come down and give me a statement."

"Yes sir," said Drake.

Young Smith told his parents he was leaving to talk with Seipert, got cleaned up, then called Brad Jensen, a close friend, for the ride to town.

"Drove Around"

"We drove around for a while," says Jensen. "We discussed it. I asked him if he wanted to go to the sheriff's office. Drake said no, that he wanted to go home and get his father to come in with him."

"Then he said 'I ought to kill myself.'"

"I thought it was just an expression, that he didn't mean it. I told him it wasn't that bad—that it was serious, but not that bad."

Later, a neighbor was talking with Drake's parents in the kitchen. The youth went into his bedroom.

"Drake, do you want a piece of cake?" called his mother.

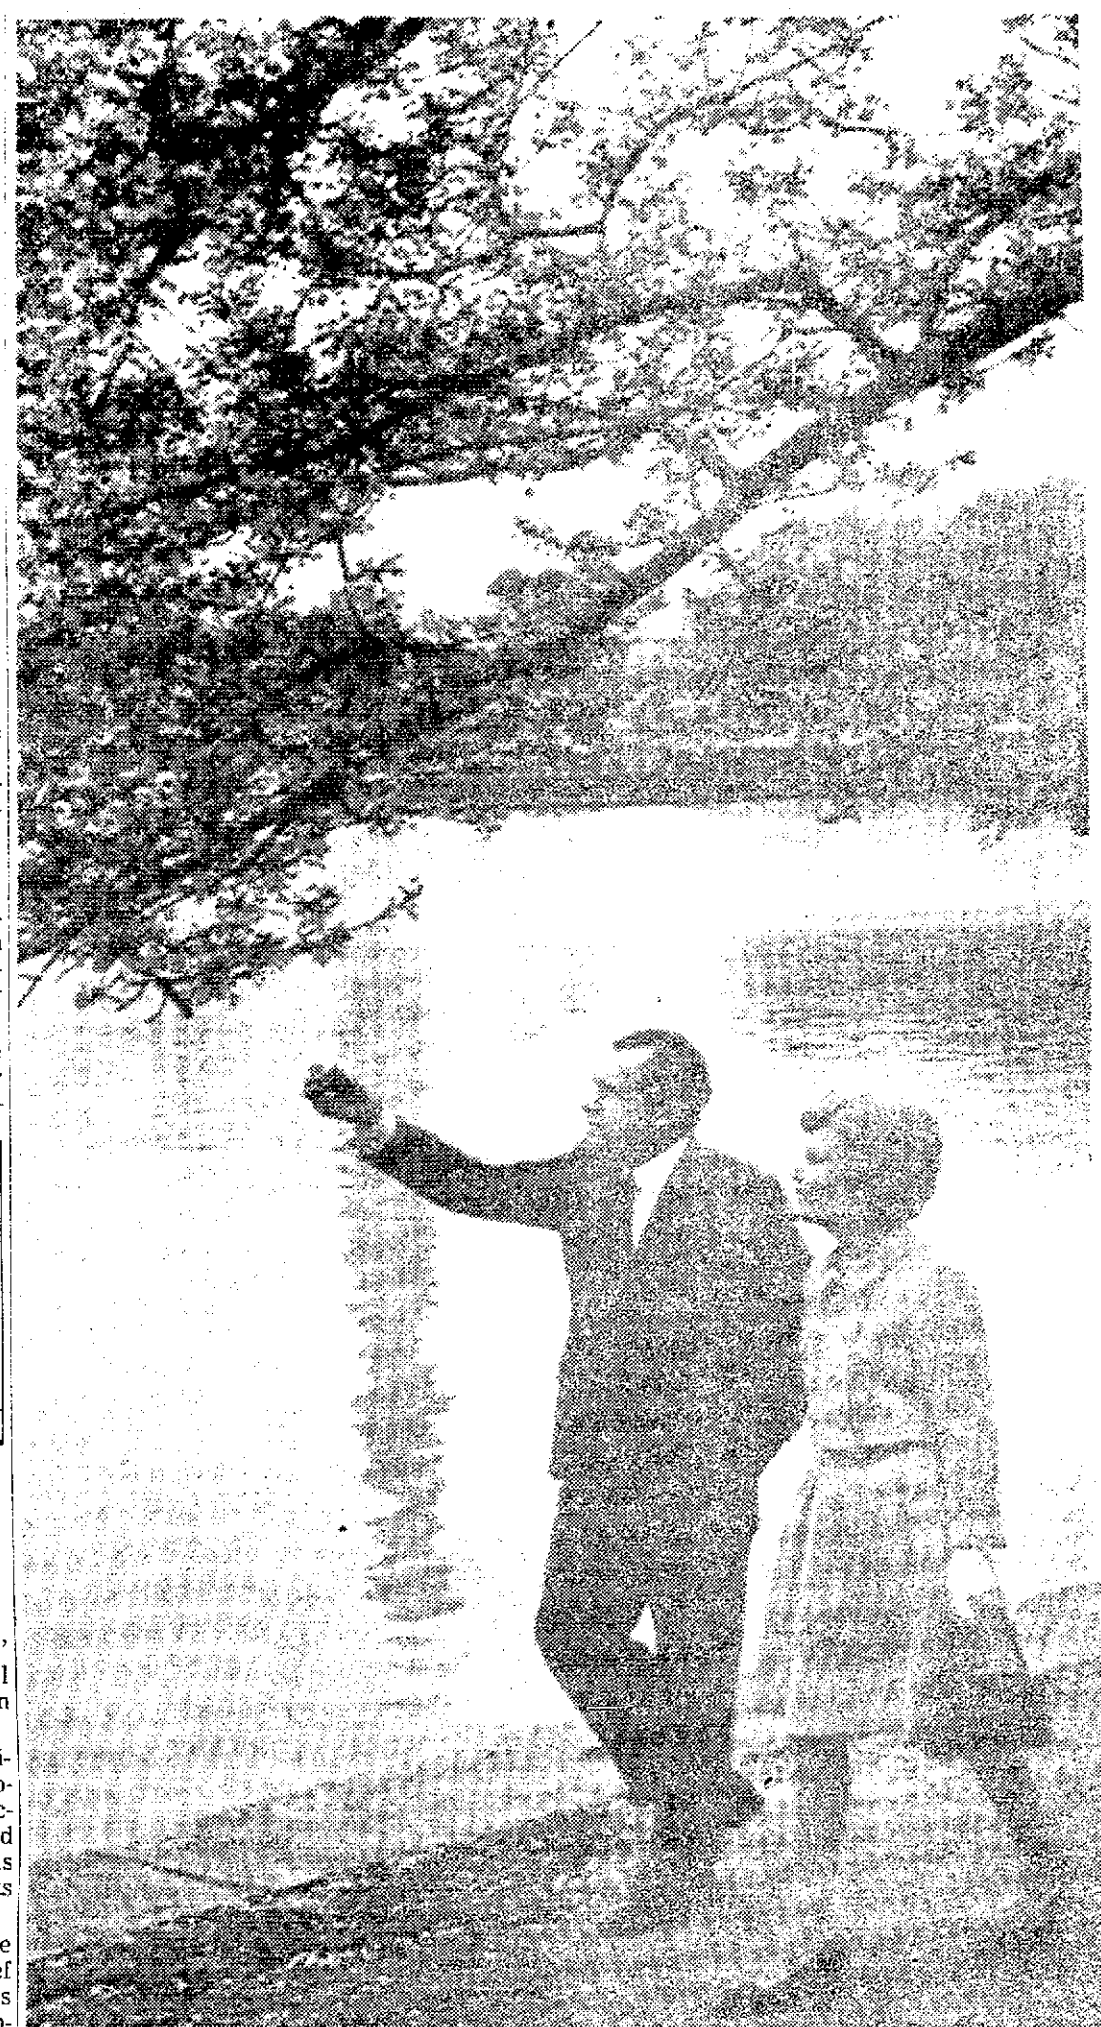

"No, thanks."

About 4:20 p.m., Seipert was still at his desk, waiting for Drake Smith. Came an urgent radio call from the Highway Patrol: "A shooting at the Irving Smith home. Bring an ambulance."

Drake's body lay on the floor of a blood-splattered closet, a massive wound in his neck. Nearby was his 16-gauge shotgun.

'Not a Lobbyist'

Knowles Defends 'Failure' To Wage War Over Budget

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — It is up to department heads and pressure groups to fight for budgets being slashed by the legislative Joint Committee on Finance, Gov. Warren P. Knowles said Monday.

"I'm not a lobbyist and I can't very well coerce or intimidate members of the legislative body into accepting my views," said Knowles of the finance committee which already has cut about $200 million from his proposed $1.6 billion budget for 1969-71.

"People just don't seem to understand the limitations of powers imposed by the state Constitution," said Knowles in criticism that he is not fighting for his own budget.

That budget is now undergoing the scalpel of the finance committee, which has cut deeply into funds proposed in most major state agencies for any new programs and for costs caused by increased workload in the two-year, on-going budget of the state.

"The President of the United States doesn't go up to Capitol Hill and defend his budget, and I know of no governor in the country . . . who is charged with lobbying for his budget," said Knowles.

"The governor cannot continue to interfere and intercede in legislative deliberations."

Knowles made his comments after a 90-minute operational cabinet meeting, in which seven major department heads were present. Four of them have undergone sizable cuts in their recommended budgets. No one at the meeting brought up the subject during the session in which reporters were present.

Asked why the silence was broken by the legislature, Knowles said the legislature was not supposed to start a new $1 billion war budget until after the session.

"Unique Session"

"This is a most unique session. Hearings on his bill, Nelson of the Legislature," said Knowles, contending that the Senate subcommittee on lawmaking, distracted by disemployment, manpower and ructions on the University of Poverty, of which Nelson is Wisconsin campus, have yet to convene.

His job was to make the budget recommendation to the legislature, Knowles said, pointing out the separation of powers clause in the state Constitution.

He said that lawmakers listen to their own sources when they make such budget decisions.

"They are all individuals elected by their own constituencies, and they all have provincial, parochial and political views which vary, and it is the consensus that is thus achieved in a legislative session which is finally representative of the will of the people."

Disagree on Aims Watershed Council Clash

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Signs of disagreement pervade the second meeting of the newly formed Fox-Wolf Watershed Council, a voluntary organization of three Fox Valley planning commissions to promote cooperation and pool planning knowledge.

The clash of ideas started with wording of the articles of the organization, spread to when and what kind of conferences it should hold and included disagreement over the exact purpose of the young joint body.

Proposed articles were presented by the Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG), which Eugene E. Franchett, COG executive director, said were minor revisions of the articles suggested by the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission.

Fox-Wolf Council

His changes, said Franchett, would incorporate more closely the idea of a Fox-Wolf Watershed Council. The group seemed to agree last month the Fox and Wolf should be the principal areas to work to improve. For this reason, he eliminated "northeastern Wisconsin" and "Lake Michigan" from the language of the articles.

Gordon A. Bubolz, chairman of the regional planning commission, objected sharply, suggesting COG's changes would make the joint organization appear to not care about Lake Michigan.

COG representative Abbott Byfield, director of public affairs for Kimberly-Clark Corp., reminded Bubolz that this joint committee can do little about the problems in the lower Lake Michigan area.

Limit Area

Another COG representative, Robert Driessen, an engineer at Thilmany Pulp and Paper Co., Kaukauna, suggested the joint committee should first seek to take care of its own area.

Franchett said the "intent was not to strike Lake Michigan as a concern; if we do a good job in our areas, it would necessarily follow that this would contribute to improving Lake Michigan."

Both sets of proposed articles were tabled for further study.

Bubolz and Eugene Garrow, Fremont, a former regional planning commissioner, pushed for a conference in late May. Garrow said that technicians from various state divisions should be brought in to discuss what they have done to date in water resource management.

Franchett said the subcommittee appointed at the first meeting had agreed to delay a conference until September because notice was too short to prepare an adequate conference and secure good speakers. The joint council was formed in March.

Summer Study

Byfield questioned the hurry and noted certain state studies would be completed this summer, making a fall conference an ideal time.

Garrow would not relent, and a compromise was reached. The technicians will be called in for the council meeting May 28, and the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay will be contacted on a more extensive conference, geared toward public awareness, later in the year.

The COG representatives suggested it should direct its efforts toward working with private, municipal and industrial groups in this area on the water resource problems while Garrow said the regional planning commission's original intent was to communicate more with state and federal officials and coordinate knowledge and programs.

The third member of the joint council is the Brown County Planning Commission, which was represented by Ralph Bergman, county planner.

Leonard Crook, executive director of the Great Lakes Regional Commission, and Cy Kabat, of the resource department's research bureau, also offered full cooperation and support. Crook said his organization wanted to tie in this area's work with that of the other Great Lakes areas.

Since the state and federal governments first took significant steps in the mid-1970s, Frangos said, here have been moves to more effective regional planning and comprehensive water resource planning.

The state realized the federal government needed help in water programs and passed a law in 1966 to develop comprehensive water resources planning and regional plans, he said.

The next steps in Madison, he continued, will be gathering basic data and analyzing it, conducting studies to determine the necessary policies and a financial help.

He added: "In the next two years, we should be providing you with some tangible support in any efforts you may undertake."

Student Tour Of Industry Being Planned

WAUPACA — Students interested in cooperative vocational education courses and sources of employment in the western half of Waupaca County will make an all day tour on April 30 of local industry and hospital facilities.

Included in the tour will be students from Iola-Scandinavia, Manawa and Weyauwega high schools. Accompanying them will be their guidance counselors and James Malotke of the Fox Valley Vocational Institute staff and Rick Bolin, consultant in the Fox River Valley Resource Development Center and Oshkosh State University.

Included in the visit will be the Waupaca Foundry, the Wolf River Sausage Co. and the Grand Army Home for Veterans at King.

Information May be Misleading Beware of 'Bargain Schools'

WAUPACA — With graduation only seven weeks away for most high school seniors, it appears that some unscrupulous persons are misleading some students and their parents by urging them to sign up for college training "now, and receive a scholarship or reduced tuition."

Roman P. Danielsen, guidance director at Waupaca High School, sent out a notice to parents and students urging them to take certain steps before they signed any papers or pay money to these "so-called representatives."

Check First

Danielsen cautions: "If a medical school or a technology school tells you their graduates are being employed in your licensing area — call these places and check."

"If a school offers to train you as an airlines stewardess, check with the airlines. You will find that airlines themselves will train you if you qualify."

"The professional associations for barbers, medical technologists, fashion designers or electronics workers can tell you better than any salesman, whether a particular school will train you for a job in your chosen field," the counselor points out.

In fields which require a license, Danielsen advises students to check state or federal licensing agencies. They also will advise what education will be necessary to qualify for their licensing.

Only two Minnesota schools, both of them public, are approved by the Federal Aviation Agency for training licensed aviation mechanics, the counselor cites.

If a school claims "thousands of successful graduates," the students are urged to ask cautiously for several names and check.

The office of the State Department of Public Instruction in Madison is one of the best sources for checking accreditation of schools in the state of Wisconsin, Danielsen said.

Danielsen's final tip is to call the high school guidance counselor at anytime. "If you are already out of high school, we'll still be happy to advise you," he said.

County Officials Oppose Elected County Executive

Outagamie, Winnebago Board Chairmen Rap Veto Power in Bill Proposed by Froehlich

Outagamie County Board Chairman Sylvester Esler and Winnebago County Board Chairman Joseph Drexler have indicated that they oppose the election of a county executive and his veto powers, as proposed in a bill being drafted by Assembly Speaker Harold Froehlich, R-Appleton.

The new executive, as envisioned by Froehlich, would serve as the head of county government, with executive powers to veto county board actions, draw up an executive budget and appoint some county officials.

Froehlich's bill also would allow residents of smaller counties to require election of a county executive by a referendum vote.

"We have an executive secretary now (Alvin Woehler) only he doesn't have veto power," Esler said today.

More Duties

"He started out as an accountant and took on other duties as the demand increased but he doesn't have the power to appoint department heads. That's up to the board," Esler added.

Esler pointed out the board had invited Froehlich to "come over to the courthouse and observe one of our sessions but he hasn't responded to our invitation."

"How can anyone who apparently is not knowledgeable about county board procedures tell us how to operate," Esler questioned.

Drexler said he is sure that county supervisors are against veto power for a county executive.

The Winnebago County chairman also felt that a bill which would make any kind of county executive mandatory is premature.

'Make it Optional'

Froehlich proposed the county executive would be mandatory in all counties with over 100,000 population.

Drexler contends that "it should be put on an optional basis first for all counties. Maybe counties would be willing to accept a mandatory executive sometime in the future," he added, "but not now."

However, Drexler said he definitely sees the need for some kind of fulltime administrative officer. He cannot keep up with the requirements of his present job on a part-time basis, Drexler noted.

Some members of the Winnebago board have been trying for over a year to appoint a county administrator who would work fulltime to coordinate the activities of standing committees and do staff work for them. He would have far less power than the elected county executive, serving only at the pleasure of the board.

But the county board has voted down the administrator position several times, most recently because some supervisors felt the duties of the proposed official were not defined clearly enough.

History to be Reviewed Lions to Celebrate 40 Years in Brillion

BRILLION — Forty years of community service and fellowship will be commemorated by the Brillion Lions Club Thursday at Van Abel's Hollandtown.

Some 240 members of the local and area clubs, state Lions dignitaries and their wives are expected at the 6:30 p.m. dinner-dance. Among the guests will be four of the 20 charter members. They are Edgar Mueller, Oliver C. Wordell, Arthur J. Neumeyer and Frank Kleibe, all of Brillion.

These men have seen the club grow to its current 84 membership and have witnessed community growth through projects instigated by the Lions Club. Annual activities sponsored by the club include a Halloween party and Easter egg hunt for youngsters, a high school scholarship award, flower boxes on Main Street, a holiday home decoration contest and a skating rink. The top 10 scholastic students in the high school have been club dinner guests the last several years.

Paving of U.S. 10

"Old timers" can remember back to 1933 when the paving of U.S. 10 from Appleton to Manitowoc was accomplished a year ahead of schedule through their efforts. The group also sponsored a highway dedication ceremony here.

Brillion's 50th anniversary as an incorporated village was celebrated in 1935 with a Lions Club sponsored three-day homecoming event. In 1944 club members advocated a change in Brillion's form of government from a village to a city.

Other accomplishments that club members will reminisce about Thursday include:

—The testimonial dinners they staged in 1941 for Otto J. Zander who was a civic leader, publisher and member of the board of education for 33 years; in 1943 for Carl Wolf founder of the city band and director of the high school band for many years; and in 1946 for Mrs. Emil Reinhardt, long time Red Cross volunteer worker.

—The 4-H junior fairs conducted throughout the 1940s at Horn Park at which youngsters displayed their animals.

—The initiative taken to erect the high school gymnasium in 1938.

—The $3,500 raised to purchase high school band uniforms in 1948 and the $15,000 raised for lights on the high school athletic field in 1950.

—Their movement to acquire a school of vocational and adult education here in 1949 and sponsorship of a Lions Club at Reedsville.

The local Lions Club also erected a memorial at Horn Park to Hugo Muehlbach, who contributed the park to the city; introduced the bicycle license ordinance; sponsored the 1955 Camporee of the Valley Council of Boy Scouts of America at Horn Park; proposed the formation of a council of Civil Defense during World War II; sent the Brillion High School band to Miami Beach for the Lions International Convention in 1963 and for the past two years has been host to the high school championship football team at a banquet.

Event Committee

Olive C. Wordell and R. D. Petes, co-chairmen for Thursday's event are being assisted by Howard Heimke, Edward S. Eick and Edgar Mueller.

State Lions Club dignitaries who will attend are Vern Ruhl, District Governor from Princeton and Clarence Stum, Past International President from Manawa.

Current officers of the Lions Club here are Lawrence Pagel, president; Richard Larson and Donald Schmeller, vice presidents and Kenneth Dexheimer, secretary-treasurer. Seven club members have held state or international positions during the 40 years.

Near Outagamie Airport Major Development Planned at U.S. 10, 45

BY WILLIAM C. CAREY
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Plans for a multi-million dollar, year-around recreation center northwest of the city in the Town of Greenville were disclosed Monday.

Summit Heights Corp., Appleton, has put together a 240-acre site for the development, to be located near the junction of U.S. 10 and 45 in an area known as Lella's Corners.

The announcement that a $2.5 million development has been in the planning stage for about three years was made by Joseph J. Engel, Appleton real estate developer.

Engel said one of the key figures in helping to plan the entire layout, which will include recreation facilities, a supper club, homesites and apartment complexes, is Andrew Wargo, former manager of Butte des Morts Country Club.

The center will be laid out so it backs up to the Outagamie County Airport, making it convenient for persons to fly in from other parts of the state and country to take advantage of the 12-month facilities, according to Engel.

He said the corporation has put together general plans for the extensive layout and will now contract with an architect to prepare the working and construction drawings.

3 Lakes

There will be three man-made lakes, all spring fed, located in different areas of the overall complex. One lake is already in existence and two others are under development. They will be used mostly for providing water to maintain the golf course.

"We have done a considerable amount of preliminary work," Engel said.

He said in addition to the 240 acres, which includes 2,640 feet of frontage on U.S. 45 and 3,960 feet on U.S. 10, the corporation also purchased some wooded property.

In addition to the proposed recreation facilities, plans call for 180 homesites in one area and luxury apartments in another.

Engel thought the first stage of construction this year would be a supper club and clubhouse to serve the new golf course. Work will also start on the winter sports-recreation facilities.

"There is a definite need for a year-around center here," Engel said, "Being at the intersection of two federal highways makes it an ideal location."

Repertory Theater Lead Won't Show Up Here

When the Milwaukee Repertory Theater opened a workshop and performance Monday at the Fox Valley campus of the University of Wisconsin Green Bay, Michael J. (Marc) Alamo, one of the leads in the production, was not with them.

Alamo, who was taken into custody Wednesday by the Army which alleges he failed to report for reserve duty last year, is being replaced by Jeff Chandler in the role of Lucky in "Waiting for Godot" Chandler created the role at the Repertory last season.

Chandler had just completed a tour in the musical, "Your Own Thing," and flew from New York to Milwaukee Wednesday.

Alamo said he had filed a suit in federal court contending that he had been taken into custody illegally. A hearing Fox Valley before Federal District Judge Richard B. Austin has been set for Friday in Chicago.

The actor had been in the Army ready reserve for five years, and a half years and is to complete his obligation in September.

Last May he was ordered to report for active duty. Alamo said he requested that he be relieved of duty. The information had been reported for his appeal. Alamo what he thought was more from the Army.

All Apartments Approved at Golden Venture

Fire Escape Changes Had Been Required In Some Quarters

KAUKAUNA — Official word has been received by the Kaukauna Housing Authority from the state authorizing occupancy of apartments 201 through 231 in the Golden Venture Apartments, 125 W. 10th St.

Preliminary approval had been received earlier making it possible for persons to occupy some of the apartments, but official word came after the structure was inspected by Willard Van Handel, state building inspector. Delay in granting occupancy in these apartments hinged on changes in fire escape balconies.

The $1.25 million housing development for the elderly is practically filled, according to Mrs. Lawrence Van Zummeren, executive director.

Double Units

About 10 of the larger units, designed for occupancy by couples are unfilled and unless sufficient applications are received from Kaukauna residents or residents of the Kaukauna school district, these units may be made available to couples living outside the Kaukauna area. Very few single person apartments remain and sufficient applications are on hand to fill these, the director said.

Couples who formerly lived in Kaukauna and are interested in one of the double units will be given special consideration if they desire to move back to the city, continued Mrs. Van Zummeren.

Waiting List

After all apartments are filled, additional applicants will be placed on a waiting list. Residents must be able to provide for their own personal needs and are required to properly maintain their unit in the building. To be eligible for admission, an applicant must be 62 years of age or over, or handicapped or disabled under Social Security.

Eligibility income at the time of admission cannot exceed $3,000 per year for single persons or $3,600 for couples. Assets are not to exceed $12,000.

Since the structure was financed by the federal government, federal officials are anxious to see complete occupancy of the building as soon as possible after completion, thus insuring adequate housing for the elderly and at the same time providing governing authorities sufficient rental income to make operation of the home feasible.

Appleton Man Jailed For Threatening Taxi Driver With Knife

A 60-day jail sentence was ordered Monday afternoon for an Appleton man who put a knife to the throat of a taxi cab driver Sunday night.

Duane Katke, 28, 310 E. McKinley St., pleaded guilty in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 of reckless use of a knife. Judge Nick F. Schaefer granted Huber Law privileges.

Appleton police said Katke was coming from a Town of Menasha tavern in an Appleton taxi cab about 8:20 p.m. Sunday when he pulled the knife on the cab driver, at S. Oneida and W. Seymour Streets, and ordered him to drive him to a southside tavern. He had asked to be taken home.

Katke, according to police, put one hand over the cab driver's mouth and the other hand, holding the small knife, to the driver's throat. Katke was in the back seat.

A woman passenger jumped out of the cab and ran for help. Katke then fled on foot. Police took him into custody at his home a short time later. Katke said he had been drinking all day.

Katke is on probation, the court noted.

Cigarette Ashes In Waste Basket Result in Fire

Cigarette ashes dumped into a bathroom waste basket caused a minor blaze about 8 p.m. Monday at the home of Mrs. Robert McCoy, 219 W. Commercial St.

Mrs. McCoy had the fire out by the time fire fighters arrived, by placing the burning waste basket under water in the bathtub. There was some smoke damage in the house.

A grass and brush fire in the 700 block of W. Front Street kept fire fighters busy for more than an hour Monday afternoon. The entire hillside behind 741 W. Front Street was in flames when a fire truck arrived.

At 4:40 p.m. Monday, fire fighters were sent to the 600 block of W. Brewster Street when fire broke out in the engine compartment of a car owned by Val Timmers, 2610 N. Morrison St. A flooded carburetor was listed as the cause of the fire, which caused minor damage.

One truck was sent to the 2500 block of N. Beechwood Street about 6:20 p.m. on a report of a rubbish fire in a vacant lot.

Cities Unite to Fight Tax Plan

Milwaukee Suburbs Oppose Tarr Task Force Proposals

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Representatives of Milwaukee suburbs voted Monday to organize in opposition to the Tarr task force's legislative recommendations for remodeling the state's method of sharing tax revenue with cities.

Spokesmen for the new group insisted their plan is not designed to criticize the benefits under which such cities as Milwaukee would benefit by the Tarr proposals, but is aimed at defending municipalities whose local tax bills might increase.

The group is being called Committee for Tax Sense. Non-suburban communities opposed to the Tarr plan are to be asked to join, and spokesmen made particular mention of Madison, Green Bay, Ashland and Superior.

Reduce Discrepancies

The Tarr plan for revising shared taxes would give most of the state's municipalities a bigger slice of the tax revenues shared with the state, and would reduce the discrepancies that exist between municipal tax levels.

Spokesmen said no major steps would be taken until after a meeting next Monday of the League of Suburban Municipalities. The committee decided not to try to work immediately with the league because several of the league's 24 members would benefit from the Tarr plan.

The committee, meeting in one of the plush hotels in downtown Milwaukee, said communities throughout the state would be asked to help finance a public relations campaign aimed at the Tarr proposal.

Sen. Nile R. Soik, R-Whitefish Bay, advised the committee to suggest legislative amendments rather than simply wage a publicity war. Soik called for "some constructive alternative."

Although suburban leaders have said the Tarr plan would help Milwaukee with its tax problems while penalizing wealthy suburbs, a Milwaukee public relations adviser, Paul Larson, warned against what he called a suburban campaign aimed exclusively at Milwaukee.

"There can be no mouthing of the phrases 'justice' and 'equality' when the Tarr proposal would take money from financially hard-hit areas like Superior," Larson said.

Waupaca Opens Defense of Title

Waupaca, undefeated champion through six league games last season, is again tabbed the team to beat in the 1969 Central Wisconsin Conference baseball race which was slated to open today.

The Comets lost some important regulars through graduation, but coach Dan Lavold, in only his second year, still may have enough material on hand to claim another crown.

The defending league kings face perhaps their toughest test of the conference campaign only a sophomore, will have to today when they play host to the Marion Mustangs. In other rest of the holdovers include league openers, Wittenberg, 18-0 to Pacelli and St. Mary, 2-2 and 11-3. Amherst dropped a 6-4 decision to Rosholt.

Today's contests will be the first of the season for most of the CW teams. In non-conference games to date, Marion has split two games, losing to Clintonville, 5-3, and beating Tigerton, 11-3. Weyauwega has dropped all three of its starts, 18-0 to Pacelli and St. Mary, 2-2 and 11-3. Amherst dropped a 6-4 decision to Rosholt.

Here is a look at each team's prospects:

AMHERST — Gene Muettner begins his ninth season as the Falcons' pilot and welcomes the return of 11 lettermen, including seven regulars. Heading the list of holdover starters is pitcher Ray Swetalla. He is joined by catcher Al Tetzloff, infielders Doug Milius, Tim Harvey, Tom Henke, and Tim Loberg; and outfielder Jim Krusic. Other are currently on the roster, but lettermen back are outfielders Larry Miller and Pete Suski, Jim Henke, and Bill Doug Langman are on the Worden along with infielder Don Glodowski. Best of the newcomers appear Paul Swetalla and Tom Thompson.

LOLA-SCANDINAVIA — The pitcher-catcher combination of Chuck Koehler and Brian Amundson has graduated, but if adequate replacements can be found the Thunderbirds could be considerably stronger than last year. Mound duties may be shared by veterans Rolli Danielson and Mark Helgeson, two of the squad's eight returning lettermen, or to freshman Jim Wroldstad. Dennis Mork, only a sophomore, will have to today when they play host to the Marion Mustangs. In other rest of the holdovers include league openers, Wittenberg, 18-0 to Pacelli and St. Mary, 2-2 and 11-3. Amherst dropped a 6-4 decision to Rosholt.

MARION — John Bartel, the dean of the CW's baseball coaches, with 15 years experience behind him, finds replacing his entire infield as the top problem facing him this spring. Bartel can draw from eight lettermen to help fill the vacancies, with John Braun, Tom Smith, Larry Plaster, and Mike Daley likely to hold jobs. Braun and Daley, though, will probably be more valuable pitching. Also back are regular catcher Dan Brandenburg, pitcher Gary Grunewald, and outfielders Steve Kristof and Dale Klitz.

MANAWA — The Wolves of third-year coach Florian Gerl will have to solve weakness in the pitching department and Doug Milius, Tim Harvey, Tom Henke, and Tim Loberg; and outfielder Jim Krusic. Other are currently on the roster, but lettermen back are outfielders Larry Miller and Pete Suski, Jim Henke, and Bill Doug Langman are on the Worden along with infielder Don Glodowski. Best of the new-

Mickey Olson and Jim Hass; outfielders Larry Guenther and Mike Sexton; and infielder Mike Johnson. All of those except Miller and Sexton were regulars.

WAUPACA — Replacing the pitcher-catcher duo of Ken Tappa and Don Peterson looms as the No. 1 task facing second-year coach Dan Lavold. Lavold should be half-way there, though, with hurler Bob Weisbrod back for another turn on the mound. Weisbrod posted a 4-0 record last year as a sophomore. The catching duties may be turned over to outfielder Dan Stocker or last season's second stringer, Mike Schultz. Besides Doug Peterson, Dean High, and Dennis Riddle plus outfielder Bob Solberg are back as lettermen. Solberg led the 1968 squad with a .363 batting mark.

WEYAUWEGA — Nine lettermen, six of them regulars, dot the roster of coach Wayne Hoffman's Indians. Starters back from a year ago are infielders Mike Stier, Jack Meidl, and Jim Rupno; outfielders Dennis Harrigan and Jerry Robiske; and catcher Jim Bidison. Sure to help out are other monogram winners are pitcher Mike Gehreke and Dave Wagner, George Radtke, Jon Porter, Dick Jonely, and Dave Aegerter should be best of the newcomers.

WITTENBERG — Graduation swept away plenty of material from the Wildcats, among them star shortstop Jerry Aanonson, who signed a pro contract with the Cardinals. Problems are complicated with the illness of regular coach Glenn Fleetwood, who has been lost to the team up to now after suffering a ruptured appendix. Meanwhile, Don Passel has taken over the coaching reins until Fleetwood can take over again. Just five lettermen return for the Wildcats — pitcher Nick Strong; infielders Dave Wolff, Brian Schoenle, and Don Aanonson; and catcher Bruce Beversdorf. Other starters will be Barry Hartleben, either at third or pitcher, and outfielders Jim Krumire, Steve Hanke, and Eric Larssen.

Struck Firm Fails to Get New Judge

Oshkosh Company Asked Change in Federal Labor Trial

An Oshkosh firm and its Milwaukee attorney have been unsuccessful in getting a federal labor trial judge disqualified by the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB).

As a result, Eugene F. Frey presided when an unfair labor practice trial resumed today at the Outagamie County court house, instead of at Oshkosh where it started earlier in the month.

Three Appleton unions — Teamsters, Operating Engineers and Plumbers and Steamfitters — are defendants in the NLRB trial which arose out of unfair labor charges filed by Inland Trucking Co., and Wesley Melahn, co-partners of strikebound Oshkosh Ready Mix Co.

In Contempt

Frey held attorney Russ Mueller, Milwaukee, counsel for Melahn and the companies, in contempt of court when the trial was in its second day at Oshkosh. It was the first contempt citation in the 34-year history of NLRB trials in Wisconsin.

The case is an offshoot of the strike by Teamsters Local 563 and Operating Engineers Local 139 against the Valley Contractor Material Suppliers Association. The longest dispute in Fox Cities history started July 29, 1968.

After Mueller was held in contempt, a hearing was held the next day at Oshkosh during which Frey agreed to drop his citation if the company attorney improved his courtroom conduct and demeanor.

Oppose Disqualifying

However, since then Mueller filed a request with the labor board in Washington to have Frey disqualified from any further proceedings. Mueller made the motion for disqualification and submitted an affidavit by Melahn to support it.

The regional director of the NLRB at Milwaukee, which investigates and prosecutes unfair labor cases, then filed an objection to having Frey disqualified.

Attorneys for the union took no position in the controversy. It is expected it will take three days to wind up the trial.

State Official Praises Joint Council Effort

structures of programs, and developing river basin plans.

Local Participation

He noted that coordination between state, local and federal units is important. "We recognize local and regional participation is necessary if there is to be acceptance," he said.

"We encourage you to continue in this effort to develop a water resources plan as a basis for accomplishing goals," he told the joint group.

He urged the three member commissions to avoid duplication and make it a cooperative and comprehensive effort. County and community officials often have criticized the two Appleton-based planning groups for overlap.

It was suggested this joint council could help avoid this overlap.

Frangos said the joint council will need money and "strong direction from full-time people on it" to make it go. He noted if the member commissions would not allow their people a freedom to work on the joint council effort, it would be hampered.

Need Good Workers

"It's easy to talk about coordination, but it just doesn't happen unless you've got some good, strong people working on it," he said.

On a question, Frangos indicated the natural resources department could make the adjustment if the governor called for uniform administrative districts for state services. However, he added that it would require some changes.

He did not foresee that the realignment of districts would make major immediate changes in location of state services facilities or hamper severely current operations. The state's departments reportedly support the new district lines.

Charity Box Talks, but Slurs Words

An Appleton Police Department patrolman did early Saturday morning.

The boy was talking to a 16-year-old companion who was standing outside the box.

Both boys were taken by squad car to the police station where they admitted they each had drunk six bottles of beer. They were released to their parents pending further action by juvenile authorities.

A detective said Monday morning charges would be sought against a 48-year-old Appleton man suspected of selling beer to minors.

10 Supervisors Author Plan Aimed At 'Power Structure'

A resolution to create a five-man finance committee and "dismantle the power structure" was introduced this morning at the annual reorganization session of the Outagamie County Board.

The controversial resolution, signed by 10 supervisors, would take budget responsibility from the executive committee's sub-committee on finance and turn it over to a separate five-man committee.

The county board went into a committee of the whole session for a lengthy discussion.

One supporter, Supt. Eugene Kloes, Appleton, said the county has an $8 million budget which cannot be sustained by a sub-committee that barely meets once a year.

"Few People"

He charged, "The power of the board is boxed up with a few people."

Under the present setup, the county executive secretary works with the committee chairman and department heads to prepare budget requests, which are then presented to the finance sub-committee. The sub-committee's recommendations are sent to the executive committee for action.

Kloes contended there is inadequate time spent by the sub-committee on critical budget matters.

A Very Bad Budget Decision

One of the members of the legislature's Joint Finance Committee with a talent for descriptive language has said that the committee's treatment of the proposed budget of the Department of Local Affairs and Development has removed all the blood, leaving nothing but turnips. This description unfortunately is most accurate, and the blood for the new department must be restored.

A great many tentative decisions are made subject to later revision in the process of legislative review of a budget. There also is a lot of political bargaining in the budget. But in this instance, the committee is faced with an important policy decision in what the state role of leadership should be in aiding local governments. What is left of the department's budget offers little hope that the committee has grasped the meaning of this policy question.

The committee has eliminated $500,000 which was to be used to establish a state revolving fund to help get local public housing projects off the ground. It has slashed $400,000 needed to enable the state to contribute toward an expansion of regional planning and to aid communities which cannot afford local planning on their own. It has cut funds proposed for local assistance programs, including the field of law enforcement which was such a catchword in the last political campaign. It has eliminated funds which would help cities prepare for model cities applications under federal renewal programs.

Father Hesburgh Still Has Faith in Youth

While in general we approve of firm action on the campuses to restrain the anarchistic or rioting students who destroy property and seize buildings in an effort to get their own way, the demands of students for more participation in decision making and a greater voice in college affairs are healthy.

The Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, president of Notre Dame University, and who earlier had taken a firm stand against disruptions on the campus, has now spoken out in favor of student participation.

"God bless these difficult, demanding revolutionary students who are the reason and often the despair of our educational existence. We find it difficult to live with them but without them there would be little reason for institutions. Their desire for involvement is good, as it affects their education, their student government, their extra-curricular life, their concern that the university be a community in which they have a real and not a fictitious part."

Father Hesburgh further explained that such participation should not mean conferring upon the student "the earned competence that should characterize faculty or the ultimate responsibility that is the prerogative of trustees. We should involve students in every legitimate way to the extent that they are willing to assume responsibility, as well as to assert their rights. The results should ultimately be measured by their growth in maturity.

King Hussein's Proposal

It is unfortunate that Israel so hastily rejected as insincere the suggestions for moves toward peace in the Middle East made by King Hussein of Jordan before the National Press Club.

King Hussein said he was able to propose that both Jordan and Egypt could recognize the state of Israel if Israel would withdraw its troops from the areas it conquered in the 6-day war. But Israeli spokesmen complained that this proposal was nothing new and that in any case it should be made in talks between Arabs and Israelis and not in Washington.

It has been the refusal of the Arabs for face to face talks with the Israelis that has in particular annoyed them. It's a symbol of the refusal to recognize the existence of Israel as a nation and has increased antagonisms and made any real settlement of the Palestinian refugees impossible.

But the greatest hope for a Middle East settlement lies with the moderate Arab leaders and King Hussein is one of them. Along with President Nasser of Egypt, he has recognized that the Arabs are not going to be able to drive the Israelis into Wisconsin was tardy in establishing a state department with functions of aiding local governments and of staking out a role for the state in what has become too much of a direct relationship between the federal government and its direction of aid programs and local government. It is an easy thing to complain that there is too much federal direction of local affairs, but the fact is that the big reason for it has been a disinterest of state governments to accept its responsibility. City officials, faced with pressing problems, cannot be blamed for putting philosophy aside in going where aid is available.

The finance committee has a difficult and frustrating job in trying to whittle down a budget which may demand as much as $400 million in new taxes. But the job includes making judgments on programs which are demanded by urban problems and biting the bullet as far as revenues for these programs are concerned.

In the case of funds needed by the new Department of Local Affairs and Development, the committee has either refused to make this judgment or failed to understand the vital policy decision which is involved. The decisions cry out for reversal. Leaving the budget as it now stands will be a surrender to the idea that local aid programs can be financed and guided only from Washington and that state government in Wisconsin is satisfied with this conclusion.

insight and creativity and the basic standard should be educational development. We must take some chances and have more faith in this younger generation and have more understanding of their concerns."

The student riots and excessive demands on some campuses have tended to overshadow the advances toward more student participation that have been succeeding elsewhere without violence or headlines. But there are two other factors that have influenced the attitudes of a lot of Americans toward students. The war in Vietnam and the plight of the American poor — especially of minorities — have engendered strong opinion on both sides. The often deeply felt moral commitment of the student in opposing the war and seeking equality is simply not understood by a lot of his elders who consider the one unpatriotic and the other a threat to white superiority. The difference in attitudes toward sexual mores is also involved.

We continue to believe that the students of today are on the whole more highly motivated than they were a generation — or even a decade — ago. And we are happy to note that Father Hesburgh is not afraid to use the term "revolutionary" without condemnation.

Difficult and demanding such students are but they should also be able to contribute a great deal to university life if they accept the responsibilities as well.

the sea and that the nation must be accepted and its borders guaranteed.

However, Hussein is not really master in his own country. All through the Arab countries, the extremist elements have increased their followings and to some extent are acting quite independently of their national ties. There is a very real possibility that by suggesting acceptance of Israel as a nation or by proposing talks with the Israelis, Hussein could lose not only his throne but his life. It was the cause of the assassination of his grandfather not many years ago.

The proposals, charges and counter-charges may be part of the negotiating process. But it is a delicate one. Hussein himself has pointed out that "within the very near future we can either move toward our objective — a just and honorable peace in that area — or we might, indeed, lose the chance."

The Israelis should note that Hussein's aim is a just and honorable peace and not the defeat of Israel. And even that stated aim could be exceedingly dangerous for him.

More on Meade-Ballard Land Case

100 YEARS AGO
Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for April 24, 1869.

A few weeks since, on the authority of an attorney in the case, we stated that the recent decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of Edward L. Meade vs. Anson Ballard, relative to the title to a portion of the real estate in the Second ward of this city, did not reach the merits of the controversy and therefore was not final and conclusive

This was a mistake. The case was tried by Hon. A. G. Miller, Judge of the U. S. District and Circuit Court at Milwaukee, and went to the U. S. Supreme Court on appeal.

The decision of the Supreme Court is final and conclusive, although on a point, as we understand it, not relied upon by the defense so that the last cloud of title to real estate in the Second Ward of this city — aside from Reeder Smith's bungling platting of lots—is swept away.

The following is the Opinion of the Supreme Court, as we find it published in the Milwaukee News:

"The land, for the recovery of which this action of ejectment was brought, was conveyed for full consideration by plaintiff's ancestor, (George Meade), on the 7th day of September, A. D., 1847. The deed contained the usual covenants of warranty, and also the condition, expressed in these words:

" 'Said land being conveyed on upon the express understanding and condition that the Lawrence Institute of Wisconsin, chartered by the legislature of said territory, shall be permanently located upon such lands and on failure of such location being made on or before the 7th day of September, 1848, and on repayment of the purchase money without interest, the said land shall revert to and become the property of said grantors ' "

"The plaintiff who sues as heir-at-law (Edward Meade, son of the donor) maintains that this is a condition subsequent which has not been performed, and having tendered the money received by them, he now claims the right to recover the land .

"It appears by the bill of exceptions that, on the 9th day of August, 1848, the board of trustees passed a resolution locating the institute on the land described in the deed. That contracts were made for

Anti-ABM Groups Have Good Thing but Must Use Strategy

BY JOSEPH KRAFT

WASHINGTON — The opponents of the anti-ballistics missile are good guys with a good cause. But as the fight moves towards a showdown with the return of congress from the Easter recess, it is more and more apparent that they are in danger of getting hooked on an indiscriminate, symbolic issue.

If the anti-ABMers are to avoid ignominious defeat, or meaningless victory, they need a general political strategy. And such a strategy requires a the necessary buildings, which were commenced immediately, and that they were finished, and the institution in full operation by November, 1949.

"These buildings cost about $8,000, but were burned down in the year 1857, and never rebuilt. It is also said that in 1853, a larger building, called the University, was erected on the adjoining tract. These facts are claimed to constitute an infraction of the condition."

25 YEARS AGO

Tuesday, April 11, 1944.

The Rev. Clifford J. Pierson was the new minister at Memorial Presbyterian Church, Appleton. He came from Polo, Ill., where he had served the First Presbyterian Church since his ordination in 1939. During his college years at Monmouth, Ill., he won the state and national honors in forensics. He was graduated from Monmouth College in 1936; the McCormick Theological Seminary in 1939. He also held a student pastorate during his last two years in the Seminary.

Students Joseph Cummings, Jean Gallaher, Jack Hill, Robert Nolan and Charles Wallens were picked from a field of 15 to take part in the annual extemporaneous speaking recital at Appleton High School.

Mrs. Joseph Reichard was elected president of Alpha Chi Omega Alumnae. Others elected were Mrs. Howard Crabb, social chairman, assisted by Mr. H. B. Tolleite, Menasha; Mrs. Don Rawson, Neenah; secretary: Mrs. Calvin Stewart, treasurer; Mrs. Wilmer Krueger, publicity chairman.

10 YEARS AGO

Tuesday, April 14, 1959.

Scott Carnes won first place in the Appleton Optimist oratorical contest. Tom Aul took second and Robert Chase third. George T. Leary, Optimist president, presented the awards to the boys. Carnes was to compete in the state contest in Waukesha the next month.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Ashman and their son, John, 17, won two state badminton titles in Racine. Ashmans, father and son, won the men's doubles crown and Will and Dorothy Ashman took the mixed doubles title. The family appearance was sponsored by the Appleton Recreation Association.

The Jacob Coppus American Legion Post at Little Chute received three top state awards at its meeting at the Village Hall. William Winnus, first vice commander of the 9th District and a member of the post, presented the trophies to Commander Sylvan Lamers.

The awards were the Pendell trophy for community service, the McCoy Americanism award, and the Cooper trophy for work with boys.

way to move beyond ABM to grapple with the more important elements of the central issue that is at stake.

The central issue is the role of military defense in American life. Without being very precise, it seems broadly evident that the money being spent on defense purposes, and the influence accorded the military, is out of whack with both the decreasing tension abroad and the increasing difficulties at home. The problem is to channel resources away from external defense and towards the more pressing problems here at home.

Might Provoke Soviet

Superficially, to be sure, all-out opposition to the ABM looks like a good approach to that problem. The Safeguard system which the administration backs will cost an estimated seven billion dollars.

It is not clearly necessary, and not sure to pan out technically. It has long been opposed by a highly organized and articulate group of scientists. It has begun to draw the fire of the same coalition of popular forces that turned the tide on Vietnam.

But closer scrutiny shows that the case against the ABM has several drawbacks. First, there is the matter of provoking the Soviet Union into countermeasures that would set off the deadly spiral of a new arms race.

There are weapons whose development would do just that. There is, in particular, the MIRV (or multiple independently-targeted re-entry vehicle) program for putting several warheads in a single missile.

The ABM, however, is not a serious danger in this respect. The Russians don't really care whether this country builds or doesn't build an ABM. They have indicated they will agree to arms limitation talks either way.

Other Savings Targets
The major monetary savings, moreover, can be made outside the field of strategic weapons. The most promising targets, in fact, are such matters as the billions spent for anti-submarine warfare, for fighting a naval war in the Pacific, or for sophisticated fighter planes.

Lastly, there is the matter of what would happen to the President in an ABM showdown. In a knock-down, drag-out fight, Mr. Nixon might become the prisoner of the military and their allies in the congress for some time to come. But on the major issues of the defense budget, it is always much easier to work with, rather than against, the President.

In these circumstances, it makes sense to look beyond the ABM to larger concerns. A one-shot defeat of an ABM appropriations bill, even if it were possible, would be small beer. Far better would be a compromise, giving the President his ABM appropriation, but on the provision that there be, say, no further development of the MIRV program and only very limited expenditure for ABM pending negotiations with the Soviet Union.

At that stage, there would be a chance to direct public concern away from the trees, not to say twigs, and towards the forests — away from particular weapons systems and towards long-term budgetary and strategic choices. Just how to make this transition requires far more thought than seems yet to have been given to the problem.

Asks Special Committee

But several possibilities come to mind. For one thing, the congress needs to reshape itself to meet the issue. A special joint committee, with no legislative functions, might well be established to do nothing but scrutinize the role of defense in the budget. This committee should examine very carefully the annual posture statement of the secretary of defense. For purposes of comparison, it might demand that a matching statement be put forward by the secretary of state.

A national commission on the defense budget — grouping not only foreign policy experts but also men committed to solving internal problems — also makes sense. So does the financing of independent academic groups to study the defense budget and possible areas of change.

In this way the anti-ABM effort could begin to move away from a partisan and highly symbolic issue. It could begin to move towards the true goal. That is the development of a process whereby resources can be shifted in a safe and discriminating fashion from military defense to the more pressing business that asserts itself at home.

Attack on Chiropractic A Diservice to Readers

Editor, The Post-Crescent:

Your April 2nd article by The Post-Crescent Madison Bureau is a disservice to your readers. Your writer parrots the contents of a recent H. E. W. committee report in an attempt to give credibility to his attack upon the chiropractic profession. If the Madison bureau had checked for facts, they would have found that twelve of the twenty-two consultants were medical or para-medical personnel. Of the eleven people assigned to write the report, six were medical doctors, including a faculty member of a medical school, which would lead me to believe that a report of such caliber would be prejudiced and biased in opinion.

Many members of the United States Congress have become outraged over the fact that political medicine was so brazen as to place a fraudulently conceived report by a stacked committee before the Governor's Highway Safety Bills Again Having Difficulties

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — On Jan. 27 Gov. Knowles appeared before the legislature controlled by his own party and appealed for the enactment of a bundle of highway safety bills that had been spurned by another Republican legislature two years ago plus a few others that he and his advisers had devised in the interim.

About 10 weeks have passed, and there is yet no sign of significant response from the legislature, although its members spend less time in making up their minds on most issues.

The other day a reporter thought to ask one of the legislative majority party leaders about the outlook for the governor's anxiously Indeed, it sometimes seems that many legislators fear that supporting some of the measures asked by Gov. Knowles and endorsed by other leaders before him will bring retribution from constituents. Yet there is no such evidence whatever.

If there is any perceptible political reaction to the legislature's position on such measures, it is critical, but unfortunately not in a sufficiently articulate way. In the face of a passive support from the average good citizen, the organized special interests find it possible to sidetrack such matters without raising even a slight sweat.

TWO TOUGH QUESTIONS

The two tough nuts to crack, of course, are the so-called implied consent bill that would require driving permit forfeiture for failure to take an intoxication test upon arrest, and a uniform beer drinking age of 21 years to eliminate the obvious menace of the "beer islands" and their allure for young drivers during the night-time hours.

These went down ingloriously in 1967, although the legislature threw the governor a couple of useful bones by way of consolation in enacting some of his lesser proposals.

According to all the signs, that experience will be repeated.

A compulsory seat belt use bill may pass. But a bill requiring an examination for knowledge of the rules of the road upon renewal of driver examinations looks sickly, in part, perhaps, because so many of the legislators don't welcome the idea of facing such a test. Uniform traffic court procedures throughout the state presumably will be acceptable, for a slight advance.

PATROL MERGER UNLIKELY

But the expansion of the state traffic patrol together with a provision for the voluntary merger of county patrols with the state force will probably be defeated again because of the fears of the county patrolmen who have shown often before the measure of their political clout.

An important corollary measure would set up a program of recruitment and training for all police, but it is likely to fall a victim to the budget crisis that impends and will dominate legislative attention to the exclusion of hundreds of other problems.

Strictly Personal

Trick of 'False Analogy' Today's Lesson in Logic

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of the first lessons that students in logic learn is how to detect the trick of "false analogy." This means comparing things that seem to be alike, but really don't bear much relationship.

Politicians are enormously fond of this facile technique. Not long ago, for instance, Senator Everett Dirksen of Illinois pointed out that when George Washington was President in 1792, there was only about one person paid to work for the government for every 5,000 of population.

Today, he contrasted, our civilian work force is almost 3 million — one person for every 66 of population. This is supposed to "prove" that we have far too many persons on government payrolls.

Now, we may have, and perhaps we do, but the statistics of George Washington's administration have nothing to do with the case — it is a false analogy big enough to drive a team of horses through, as a moment's thought will tell us.

As little as a century ago, most Americans were still about 90 per cent self-sufficient; they produced their own goods, lived in sparse rural areas, and used the excess to barter at trading posts or among their community neighbors. It was even more so in 1792.

Today, in vivid contrast, we are only 10 per cent self-sufficient, if that, and we depend on others for 90 per cent of our goods and services and protection.

Obviously, the role of government — state and local as well as federal — increases at a geometric ratio as population goes up, as work becomes more specialized, as people group together in larger and larger communities.

For instance, a village needs only a small police force, because everybody knows everybody else. When the town increases its size by tenfold, and then by a hundredfold, the police force required does not merely go up in proportion to the rise in population, it increases at a far higher rate — for a city demands much more and different police services than a hamlet.

Mind you, I am not arguing that our public payrolls are not padded; so are most payrolls, at every level; I am simply suggesting that the historical analogy (so dear to politicians like Dirksen) is irrelevant and positively misleading in terms of modern needs. Only 14,000 men were killed on both sides in the American Revolution — but I don't hear the patriotic senator complaining about the "wasteful" proportion of our men killed in Vietnam, as compared to Washington's time.

Small Business Agency Becomes Political Mess

Mexican-American Businessmen Now Being Favored Over Ghetto Blacks

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The remarkable fact that a highly political priest from Houston, Tex., named Father Antonio Gonzalez has been holding down a desk in the Small Business

Evans Novak

Administration (SBA) the past several weeks typifies the new operation there run by Hillary Sandoval as the agency's chief. To the amazement of civil servants in both the SBA and other agencies, the Catholic cleric suddenly surfaced as a key advisor to the Small Business Administrator. Apart from what damage that might do to the doctrine of separated church and state, Father Gonzalez is a troubling figure on other scores. For one thing, his background is almost wholly political, including an effort to corral the Mexican-American vote for President Nixon last fall. Indeed, he tells SBA bureaucrats he is Sandoval's "number one political ace."

Admits Favoritism

For another, he does not hide his combative favoritism for Mexican-Americans as opposed to Negroes. It became obvious early this year when it seemed Sandoval, a Mexican-American businessman from El Paso, Tex., would not get the SBA job as promised. Father Gonzalez complained a grilly around Washington that Sandoval might have to play second fiddle to "some Negro."

The concern over Father Gonzalez, in fact, extends to Sandoval's entire operation at SBA. There is emphasis on Republican politicians (particularly of the Southwest variety) and de-emphasis on SBA's embryonic program of easy loans to black ghetto merchants.

What makes this significant is that Sandoval's predecessor, Howard Samuels, was developing a promising program of loans into the ghettos — similar to what Mr. Nixon proposed during the campaign as "black capitalism." Moreover, the atrophy of black capitalism at SBA reflects its low priority in the Nixon administration generally.

Behind Scenes Lobbying

However, the way in which Sandoval was finally appointed by the President only after intense maneuvering inside the administration helps explain current developments at SBA. Suspicious of enemies in the White House itself, Sandoval has sought to surround himself with trusted political associates. Because Samuels (a New York Democrat) lobbied behind the scenes to keep the SBA job, Samuels men at the agency were looked on suspiciously by Sandoval.

The result was a quiet purge of Samuels associates including key men in the minority-enterprise operation. One such official offered to stay on for 30 days to brief his successors but was fired with two days' notice. When he left, his knowledge of the minority loan program left with him. Sandoval's choice to run that minority program — Philip Pruitt, a young Negro stockbroker from Manhattan — has no experience or contacts in the ghetto.

Pouring into SBA, simultaneously, have been businessmen and politicians from the South and Southwest unfamiliar with the black ghetto: businessmen Arthur H. Singer of El Paso and Irving Schwartz of Albuquerque, N. M.; William Murfin, Republican state chairman of Florida;

David Martin, a professional political operative from Houston. But most important as Sandoval's aides are two Texans — Albert Fuentes of San Antonio and James Reed of Austin.

Build Republican Base

Fuentes, a onetime subaltern in the San Antonio Democratic machine who later switched to the Republicans, so far has devoted his major attention as Sandoval's special assistant to getting federal jobs for Mexican-Americans in order to build a Republican base among them.

Reed, who resigned as publisher of an Austin weekly newspaper to become assistant administrator for public affairs, is exerting his influence more widely. Because of Reed's Washington experience as a Congressional aide for militant conservative Rep. Ed Foreman (then of Texas, now of New Mexico), Sandoval relies heavily on him. During painful interviews with critical Republican congressmen, Reed has done the talking for Sandoval. It was he who wielded the hatchet in purging Samuels holdovers.

The end product has been an effective freeze on loans to ghetto merchants. Summoning area and regional SBA officials, Sandoval has informed them he wants a strict loan policy based on ability to repay. Since SBA bureaucrats habitually shy away from loans to high-risk merchants desperately in need of the money, Sandoval's order will be executed in full.

The means SBA loans to ghetto merchants, which entered a steady decline late last year, will continue to diminish — much to the distress of those Republican congressmen who took seriously Mr. Nixon's campaign talk of black capitalism. Accordingly, if the White House does not intervene at SBA, some explosion on Capitol Hill is inevitable.

198 North Vietnamese Killed Near Cambodia

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. ground troops, planes and artillery killed at least 198 North Vietnamese soldiers early today when two enemy battalions tried to overrun a day-old camp near the Cambodian border, the U.S. Command reported.

Thirteen Americans were killed and three were wounded, an American spokesman said.

Spokesmen said some of the attackers got within 30 yards of the perimeter wire before they were brought down by the American firepower. It was the largest number reported slain in any recent single action along the border.

"We had helicopter gunships working from the northwest, planes from the south and artillery firing from seven different locations on the enemy," said one officer.

The base, known as Diamond III, was carved out of the jungle about 30 miles northwest of Saigon Monday by infantrymen of the 25th Division's 2nd Battalion. Hours later the GIs detected movement 200 yards beyond the camp perimeter and called in artillery support.

A division spokesman said about 500 enemy troops attacked at 3:15 a.m., charging out of the woods in waves from three directions, firing rocket grenades, mortars and small arms.

Lt. Col. Vincent Oddi of Green Cove Springs, Fla., the 2nd Battalion commander, directed the battle from a helicopter overhead. Another helicopter used a searchlight to illuminate enemy gun positions, and gunships knocked out two .51-caliber anti-aircraft guns that were firing on the American infantrymen.

After the battle, infantrymen swept the area and captured eight wounded prisoners and a truckload of enemy weapons, including 40 automatic rifles, 34 rocket grenade launchers, 198 rocket grenades and 291 hand grenades.

It was the third attack in two weeks against a new 25th Division firebase near the enemy's Cambodian sanctuaries. U.S. troops repelled the earlier attacks on the bases named Diamond and Diamond II, and as Diamond III was being built Monday, about two miles from Diamond II, a U.S. officer had said "we hope that our luck with the name holds."

With the Viet Cong's spring offensive now in its eighth week, 20 overnight rocket and mortar attacks caused light damage at allied military bases and a few towns, spokesmen said.

Two key U.S. bases were among the targets—the huge U.S. Army headquarters complex at Long Binh, 12 miles north of Saigon, and the much-battered 9th Infantry Division headquarters base at Dong Tam, 40 miles south. Field reports said several helicopters and buildings were damaged in the latter shelling.

Rampaging Italian Convicts Surrender

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Two thousand rebellious convicts, More than 600 prisoners were transferred in chains to day from two of Northern Italy's biggest prisons. Both were wrecked beyond repair in three days of rioting.

At Milan's San Vittore jail the last of 1,300 rampaging convicts raised their hands in surrender early today after a two prong assault by police who invaded the prison in a cloud of tear gas. More than 100 policemen and about 20 prisoners were injured. Less than 400 convicts huddled in the ruins of the prison there. Police said they were surrendering as fast as officers could handcuff them. Load them aboard trucks and send them to jails in Sicily and Sardinia.

The holdouts were expected to be cleared out of the Turin prison by evening.

$800,000 Damage

Spokesmen said only about 300 women and a few sick prisoners will remain in the Milan prison, which suffered an estimated $800,000 damage. Officials said the damage at Turin might exceed that figure. Only the women's sections at both prisons were undamaged.

About 80 prisoners continued a protest demonstration at the Monday night to life in prison Harassi jail in Genoa. They remained on a prison roof overnight, warning themselves around bonfires and hurling taunts at guards. The guards said they would leave them there until they decided to come before returning its verdict in down.

Demanding "women, commu- lated liberty and new regulations," the male convicts at San Vittore took wardens as hostages and beat off police with iron bars, knives and wooden clubs. But a combined assault by local police and national carabinieri ended the rebellion.

Shortly before dawn local police broke into the prison yard through a side gate under cover of hundreds of tear gas bombs. As the club-swinging prisoners were driven back, hundreds of carabinieri charged through the main gates.

Hurl Flaming Torches

The convicts fled to the prison roofs and hurled flaming torches and burning tiles on the heads of the police climbing up to battle with them. Once the police won footholds on the roofs, the resistance broke.

Group after group of convicts raised their hands and cried "Enough. We're finished."

The Turin riot began Saturday when prisoners protested overcrowding. The prison was built 112 years ago for 600 inmates. It held 1,080 men and the crowding was aggravated because one of the six cell blocks was vacated for repairs.

Bergenthal Gets Life for Wirth Killing

MILWAUKEE (AP) — August K. Bergenthal was sentenced to life in prison Monday night to life in prison after a Circuit Court jury ruled he was sane at the time he shot a wealthy business associate Sept. 20.

A jury of eight men and four women deliberated 90 minutes before returning its verdict in down. the sanity trial which had followed his conviction 10 days ago on a first-degree murder charge.

Bergenthal, 47, of suburban Fox Point, was convicted of fatally shooting Russell D. L. Wirth, head of Universal Foods, a firm operated for decades by the Wirth and Bergenthal families.

Wirth, 62, was slain during a quarrel in his fashionable home. His wife, Mary, 61, was wounded, and Bergenthal also was convicted of reckless conduct regardless of life.

Bergenthal had pleaded innocent, and innocent by reason of insanity, and could have been committed to a mental institution had the jury ruled he was insane when Wirth was shot.

Judge Hugh R. O'Connell sentenced Bergenthal to life in Waupun State Prison, from which he could be paroled in about 12½ years. O'Connell included a sentence of one to five years on the charge involving the wounding of Mrs. Wirth.

Bergenthal displayed no emotion while the sentences were announced. With him in the courtroom were his wife, Janet, 53, his mother and his step-daughter.

Katharine, Barbra Share Oscars as Top Actresses

By GENE HANDSAKER
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The second tie in the 41-year history of the Academy Awards gives Oscars to both Barbra Streisand of "Funny Girl" and Katharine Hepburn of "The Lion in Winter"—and makes Miss Hepburn the first three-time winner.

Cliff Robertson in the role of the mentally retarded man whom doctors turn temporarily into a genius in "Charly" was named best actor of 1968 at Monday night's presentations.

"Oliver!", a musical spectacle based on Charles Dickens' "Oliver Twist," was voted the year's best picture. It won in five categories, including best-director laurels for Sir Carol Reed with this, his first musical.

For supporting performances, the honors went to Jack Albertson as the blustering father in "The Subject Was Roses" and Ruth Gordon as the meddling neighbor and part-time witch in "Rosemary's Baby."

Surprise Pick

Races in all the top categories were close, but the selection of "Oliver!" as best picture over "The Lion in Winter" was a surprise to some observers. "The academy voters apparently wanted entertainment this year," one veteran Oscar-watcher commented.

Ingrid Bergman, presenting the best-actress Oscar, looked stunned and unbelieving as she opened the envelope containing the winners' names and exclaimed: "It's a tie!"

A tie happened only once before, in 1932, when best-actor awards went to both Fredric March for "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" and Wallace Beery for "The Champ."

Miss Hepburn, 59, this year became the record holder for Oscar nominations with 11. Her previous awards as best actress were for work in "Morning Glory," 1933, and "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner," last year. She is the first triple winner in the lead actor category, either male or female. Miss Hepburn also is the second star to win twice in succession. Luise Rainer accomplished this in the 1930s.

Walter Brennan, has won three Oscars but they were for supporting roles.

Miss Hepburn, who won as the "Funny Girl," her first movie, said from the podium: "I'm very honored to be in such magnificent company as Katharine Hepburn. The first script of "Funny Girl" was written when I was 11 years old. Thank God it took so long to get it right."

"It's like when somebody asked if I'm happy, I said, 'Are you kidding? If I was happy I'd be miserable.' I'd like to thank all the members of the academy for making me miserable."

Asked about her comments backstage, she said: "Maybe some people are basically happy when they're miserable."

She said the award was "real- ly unexpected. I never gave it much thought. I enjoy the work, and to get the award for it is just whipped cream on the cake."

No Vote Totals

There was no explanation of the tie balloting among the 3,030 voting members of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. Vote totals are never announced.

For best song the Oscar went to the intricate melody, "The Windmills of Your Mind," sung by Noel Harrison in "The Thomas Crown Affair." The French composer, Michel Legrand, was in Paris, working on another film score. The husband-wife lyricists, Marilyn and Alan Bergman, accepted their Oscars.

The Soviet Union's 6½-hour spectacular, "War and Peace," collected the award for best foreign language film. It was presented to the picture's beautiful, dark-haired star, Ludmilla Savalyeva.

Writing winners were James Goldman for adaptation of his play, "The Lion in Winter" and

Harvard's Students Vote Class Boycott

Mass Meeting Ends in Demand That SDS Conditions be Fulfilled

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — day strike continuation after its estimated 10,000 members had dwindled to about half that number.

Lance Buhl, 29, the bearded history instructor who presided over the unique four-hour, university-wide referendum, said later:

"Pure democracy never works — it's too tiring, for one thing."

The Cleveland-born Buhl, who survived first a challenge to his ruling on a procedural point and then withstood a rush to the podium by angry Negro militants, rode herd over the tumultuous meeting with a bricklayer's hammer for a gavel.

Those present endorsed almost the whole list of demands put forth by Students for a Democratic Society.

Separate Questions

This came on a standing vote, and was followed by a vote of 4,041-1,522 to separate the question of continuing the strike from the question of endorsing the SDS demands.

The demands include abolition of all ROTC training at Harvard, amnesty for 200 arrested after 400 police stormed University Hall Thursday, a halt to university expansion until local housing issues are clarified, and substitution of Harvard scholarships for ROTC students, among other things.

The meeting, called by students after the university was thrown into near paralysis by the police act on Thursday, followed the format of a New England style town meeting.

"If you go on with this strike, you will destroy this university, and if you destroy this university, you destroy yourselves," said Prof. Juan Marichal in one of seemingly hundreds of appeals to the crowd.

Hours later, the Harvard Overseers announced they backed President Nathan M. Pusey's call for police "unequivocally." The Overseers, which together with the corporation govern Harvard, said the institution has stood for freedom of inquiry for "a third of a millennium."

Since the university keeps no class attendance records, it is difficult to say how many of the 15,000 students are heeding the strike call.

Scientific Study Odd Chemical Makes You Sleep

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The mystery of why you sleep and why you stay awake is coming under increasing scientific analysis.

And in odd chemical in the brain seems to be involved, a Swiss scientist said Tuesday.

The substance is a naturally occurring brain chemical known as serotonin. It is chemically closely related to hormones, which stimulate cellular activity, said Dr. Werner P. Koella of Basle.

He finds in rats, that if the normal level of serotonin is reduced or cut off, the animals stay awake for many hours or days.

Brain Injections

But if they are given brain injections of infinitesimal amounts of serotonin, they fall asleep.

It appears that brain levels of serotonin play a role in determining whether you sleep or stay awake. Dr. Koella said. He emphasized that he was not saying serotonin is the only chemical involved.

There is still a question whether serotonin's presence or absence is a cause or an effect of sleep.

Dr. Koella spoke at a session of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology, where 3,200 scientists are presenting reports this week at the largest scientific meeting of the year.

People have always wondered why sleep comes or doesn't, says Dr. Alan B. Rothballer, professor of neurosurgery at New York Medical College, in another paper read at the meeting.

Special Research

The puzzle became an area of special research after reports of brainwashing of prisoners in Korea and the effects of being deprived of sleep, which some authorities think is the main reason why brainwashing works.

Some sleep chemical may circulate in the spinal fluid bathing the brain, Dr. Rothballer said. He cited research by Dr. John Pappenheimer of Harvard University indicating that some chemical in the spinal fluid of animals forced to stay awake for long periods could induce quick sleep when given to animals who were refreshed and awake.

Remember, you don't have to spend a million to look like a million. Just be sure to get a lot more for your money.

Example: Cutlass S. This one's got Olds class and quality written all over it.

There's a Rocket 350 V-8—that runs on regular gas. A genuine Olds ride and handling action that make you feel like a million, too. There's even an anti-theft steering column lock you can't get on many cars at any price.

Put them all together and they add up to extra value that goes far beyond the modest Cutlass price.

How to look like a million on the same old budget you had before.

Celebrities Get Behind Firms, Draw Criticism

Athletes, Famous Entertainers Often Have No Liability

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Some of the more established franchise operators are casting a critical eye on the current rash of celebrity-promoted fast food or quick service restaurants.

"It's reached the point of ridiculousness," says Ray Kroc, chairman of the McDonald's hamburger chain of more than 1,009 units. "It's prostitution."

Says the less critical Robert Rosenberg of Dunkin' Donuts, "A name doesn't overcome a bad operation."

Other attitudes range from concern to tolerance to good wishes as athletes, entertainers, fingers and others try their hand at food—the promoting, not the cooking of it.

Typically, the fast food franchiser is a company with a product, a marketing plan and other assets which, for a fee, grants license to a retail outlet—the franchisee—and collects a percentage of the profits.

The franchiser sometimes raises cash through a public offering of stock in order to sell equipment and a beginning inventory to the franchisee.

Many of the celebrities have only part-time roles in the companies using their names, their primary jobs being to keep the products publicized, perhaps attend openings, and collect royalties. Others, however, hold executive positions.

Some, such as cartoon characters, play only passive roles or none at all except to suggest that their own wholesomeness somehow is transferred to the food promoted and sold by their names.

Joe Namath, Mickey Mantle, Johnny Carson, Tony Bennett, Bill Cosby, Cassius Clay, Minnie Pearl, Eddie Arnold, Rocky Graziano, Eddie Arcaro, Mahalia Jackson and more are among those who recently have lent their names.

Called "fronts" among the most outspoken critics is Kroc, who says he learned the business of selling hamburgers by working over a hot grill. He commented in an interview.

"Some of these celebrities are merely front men. If the operation succeeds they become more popular. If it fails they have no personal liability."

In many cases this might be true, even though some celebrities do stand to suffer damage to their names.

Thomas Robinson, executive director of the International Franchise Association, which lists among its 270 members many of the big name franchisers, was asked if he saw dangers in the celebrity franchising techniques.

"If the companies are proper and sound and have a real franchise program to offer there is no danger," he said.

Harm to All

"But we see a real danger to the franchisee and the investing public when an operation with no tangible assets raises millions in a stock offering. We're afraid that this may fall on everyone's head and hurt sound franchisers."

Although it is unlikely that much money has been raised on name alone, several franchisers have convinced the investing public literally to bet on their future—to put up money for equipment and signs to begin with.

Rosenberg, president of the long established, 350-unit Dunkin' chain, views the situation coolly, but he too wonders about the chances for success of celebrity franchisers.

"Fifty per cent of all small businesses fail within two years," he said. "It is increasingly more difficult for independent businessmen to go into business. There are so many areas in which they must have expertise."

Several Requirements
In franchising, he said, "You have to have sophisticated marketing, budgeting experience, quality control, acceptable equipment, a good program. Some managements might not be able to put these together."

Robert Grover, president of Snap-on Tools Corp., a franchiser incorporated 39 years ago, commented when questioned: "Anonymity: this is the way to run a business. There is nothing wrong in an advertising gimmick such as a celebrity. But," he asked pointedly, "how do they transmit their wisdom?"

He added: "I'm not sure how well they'll work. I wish them the best. But if they fail they could blacken other franchisers. It could happen. I don't want to see franchising abused."

Skipper School Brings Custody to Eighth Grade Boy

A 14-year-old boy who told the court he skipped school because he "... just doesn't like it and doesn't see any sense in going," was placed in the custody of the Outagamie County Department of Social Services for one year Monday.

Judge Raymond P. Dohr, of the county's Juvenile Court, found the youth delinquent after hearing testimony from the principal of the junior high school the youth attends.

The principal, who said the youth is failing in all four of his eighth grade subjects, explained that the boy has been truant 9½ days this year. He said the boy was "not a discipline problem" in school. The boy had been suspended four times for truancy.

A social worker told the court the boy has run away from or been truant from home four times since Dec. 22, 1968. On two occasions, the boy was gone from home for several days.

The boy's father said his son "resents any type of authority."

"You be in school every day and attend every class from now to the end of the school year," Dohr told the youth.

$11.7 Million Fund Campaign At St. Norbert

DE PERE, Wis. (AP) — Dr. Robert E. Christin, newly-appointed president of St. Norbert College, today announced the beginning of a three-year fund-raising campaign designed to bring in $11.7 million.

Christin, who will assume full-time duties as president July 1, said the decision to make the fund drive came from a year-long series of meetings on the future financial needs of the college.

Christin said the money is needed for a new library learning center, a physical education and health building, and addition to the memorial union, a new maintenance building and a general endowment for faculty and administrative salaries, student financial aid and general operations.

Youth Put Under Supervision for 2 Drinking Offenses

Two drinking offenses brought a year's supervision Monday for a 16-year-old Appleton high school student who appeared in Outagamie County Juvenile Court.

Judge Raymond P. Dohr, after hearing testimony from an Appleton detective found the youth delinquent, but then withheld a finding of delinquency at the urging of A. W. Ponath, county corporation counsel.

A detective told the court the youth was found lying on a terrace at S Memorial Drive and W. Eighth Street the night of Sept. 6, 1968. He said the boy was taken to a hospital to have his stomach pumped. He and three other boys reportedly drank from a bottle of liquor stolen from a beer depot. The other boys appeared in Juvenile Court earlier.

On Feb. 23, the boy was picked up by police in the 800 block of W. College Avenue. He had been drinking beer.

The youth refused to tell the court where he obtained the beer. Police said the boy was uncooperative when he was questioned.

Dohr told the youth, "If you get drunk again... I probably will have to send you away."

Private Investments Eyed for State Fair

Building Commission Gives Formal Okay To Study of Exposition Center Financing

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — State agencies should investigate the possibility of attracting private investments into a new home for the state fair, the State Building Commission has agreed.

The action formalizes discussions which have been going on between private businessmen and the Department of Local Affairs and Development over a possible alternative course for the future development of the problem-plagued exposition center.

In an unanimous vote, the building agency approved continuation of the discussions and involvement by one of its subcommittees in the investigation. The move is an outgrowth of an approach made by a group of private investors to the local affairs department, which has administrative control of the financially failing state fair.

Repair or Move?
The state department has been the focal point for debate over the repair or rebuilding of the exposition work, said Weiford.

Assemblyman David Martin, R-Neenah, warned that the reconstruction cost over $10 million, the building agency has better be submitted "soon" or he will introduce a joint resolution in the legislature ordering the building that the agricultural portions of the fair be split from the West Allis site and run in more modern quarters elsewhere.

But before the agency gets involved in such discussions to any depth, the commission should be involved, said Weiford. The commission agreed that the proposal constitutes a major policy issue for the state. Under the tentative outlines, a private exposition center would be built within Milwaukee County, but outside of the city of West Allis, where the existing site is located. Included in the center would be a sports arena, a race track, and an exposition center. State funds might be used to aid construction of that portion which the state would use for the state fair, or the state might lease or rent portions of the privately-owned center for two weeks a year to put on the state fair.

John Gary, popular singer-performer who made "big time" the second time around in the short span of five years, appears in Appleton Thursday night on the Gallery of Arts Variety Theater series at Appleton High School-West. Concert time is 8:15 p.m. and tickets are available at Heid Music Store. Gary's musical career began as a boy soprano of 9 when he won a three-year scholarship to the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York City. He was giving concerts on tour at 14 and started acting and singing in movies when his voice failed. This ended his first, childhood career. Since 1962, the entertainer has catapulted to fame as a recording artist, concert singer, stage and television star.

'Polynesian Adventure' Big Special
BY TV SCOUT
6:30-7:30 (Channel 2) — The National Geographic Specials have not only enjoyed a continuity of excellence, they have been marked by the brilliant colorful photography, and in that sense the series outdoes even itself with its presentation of "Polynesian Adventure." Cameraman Stan Waterman did what most Americans only dream of. He packed up his family, including Gordy, 17, Susy, 15, Gar, 13 and his wife, Susannah, and took off for a year's living in the South Pacific on such exotic islands as Tahiti, Bora Bora, Raiatea and Tahaa. Underwater fans will be absorbed by Stan's films on marine life, catching everything from shrimp to the giant manta ray.

9-10 (Channel 2) — After such a pleasant journey to the South Pacific, where life is so simple and pleasant, one wonders if civilization is worth it as we view a report on campus chaos, a CBS News special titled The College Turmoil. The program uses a unique approach in gathering college officials in one group and students in another. Both groups are asked identical questions and we get a glimpse of the chasm that separates them. Eric Sevareid comments on the answers of both.

6:30-7:30 (Channel 11) — The Mod Squad has a murder mystery tonight and it's a good one. The killer is male, believed to be blonde, and equipped with a knife. The killing took place in a bus station and the suspect boarded one of three buses loaded with vacationers.

6:30-7:30 (Channel 5) — The Jerry Lewis Show is noticeably off tonight with the humor sliding and the music a saving grace. Lewis is definitely the show's star. Without him it might have been chaos. Peter Lawford guests, spoofing several movies with Jerry, including "The Boston Strangler" and "2001: A Space Odyssey." Singer Nancy Ames is also featured.

7:30-8 (Channel 5) — Ordinarily when one girl asks another, and a close friend at that, for help in landing a man, the other girl is only too delighted. But not Julia. Her friend Rita has reason to believe that destiny will bring her and Ted Newman together, but she doesn't mind getting a little human help as scene over the other.

7:30-8:30 (Channel 2) — Conversely, The Red Skelton Show is up tonight with opera star Patrice Munsel providing some good comedy, playing Maid Marion to Red's Robin Hood character, Forsooth.

7:30-8:30 (Channel 11) — There's a clever and lively opening to It Takes A Thief which is unfortunately the best part of the otherwise trite script. Remember the SAC bomber that went down off Spain resulting in the radio-activity scare? This story is based on that, opening in three scenes that are cleverly intercut with 8-10 (Channel 5) — Tuesday Night at the Movies reruns a World Premiere feature titled "Prescription: Murder," which stars Peter Falk. There is barely a good guy in this one other than Nina Foch, the wife of a flamboyant psychiatrist (Gene Barry) who has devised a perfect murder plan to get rid of her.

Beware Fast-Talkers About Social Security

BY SYLVIA PORTER

Before 1969 ends, around 17,000 Social Security checks, worth over $1 million will have been stolen from their elderly, needy beneficiaries. This year, as last year and the year before that, the ignorance or carelessness of the elderly citizen will make him a prime target of the swindler in our land.

In New York City, the problem is now so bad that the city is considering special measures to reimburse immediately any elderly person whose Social Security or other pension check has been stolen. The city also is experimenting with a welfare identification card which will hold a photograph of the welfare client as a deterrent to the related problem of check forgery. The idea is to help banks, merchants and others who cash checks identify the check cashers.

But why not protect yourself or help protect a friend or relative who is a Social Security beneficiary? For instance:

- Try to meet your letter carrier when he delivers your check (usually the third of the month).
- Over and above the problem of stolen checks is the outright Social Security and Medicare swindle. To illustrate:

Porter

Beware Fast-Talkers

A fast-talking man appears at your door and introduced himself as a "Medicare investigator." He says he can arrange a higher benefit than you are now receiving — flashing packets of literature which are available free at the Social Security office. But this visitor may be no more than a house thief in a white collar or a high-pressure promoter.

A person introduces himself as a "Social Security representative" and tells you he is tracking down counterfeit currency in connection with the Medicare program. He asks for samples of your cash to be photographed; if you fall for this gimmick you will never see your money again.

A man posing as a hearing aid salesman tells the head nurse at a hospital that he has been sent to see a Medicare patient whose name he has forgotten. He asks the names of patients wearing hearing aids, visits and informs each that his physician has ordered a change in his hearing air. He collects a substantial deposit from each, then takes off.

A self-appointed "Social Security representative" tells you that you have received a substantial benefit overpayment by mistake. But any money you give him goes right into his own pocket.

Medicare "doctors" come to your home to examine you, but simply take this opportunity to steal whatever they can from you.

Still, the most widespread gyp remains the offer to take over your benefit check for you and in return prepare your tax return, pay your bills, etc. All too often, though, those offering such services will take an unconscionable cut of cash for themselves — or even accept money for payment of income taxes and never file a return.

Be warned: Social Security representatives are not salesmen, do not solicit over the telephone, and never ask for money to arrange a higher benefit. Insist on seeing credentials of anybody claiming he represents Social Security or Medicare. If in any doubt, call your Social Security office while he waits.
